G. O. P. HALTS CAPITOL RUSH FOR INFLATION

Drastic Cloture Rule Is Threatened to Pass 3-Way Plan.

VIGOROUS EXPANSION OF CREDIT MAPPED

Federal Reserve Chieftains Confer With Roosevelt; Senate in Turmoil.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

The headlong rush for inflation was checked yesterday on Capitol Hill.

A tangled parliamentary situation prevented a vote on the Roosevelt currency program in the Senate, and although Democratic Leader Robinson served notice that the drastic cloture rule ultimately would be invoked against the gathering opposition, defenders of sound money insisted they would not permit a measure of such sweeping import to become law without extended debate.

While the whole question of monetary policy thus was turned over indefinitely to the statesmen and orators in the Senate, the Federal Reserve Bank governors, continuing their meetings with the Federal Reserve Board in the Treasury, determined upon a policy of vigorous open market operations as a means of immediately expanding credit resources.

As an essential preliminary to the attempted resumption of this policy, the Federal Reserve managers received assistance in the highest official quarters that immediate steps toward direct currency inflation would be avoided.

Purely Discretionary Power.

Confirming this informal understanding, President Roosevelt allowed it to be known officially yesterday afternoon that he regards the authority contemplated in the Thomas currency bill as purely discretionary. The powers may or may not be used by the President, as the situation appears to warrant.

A few minutes before his regular Friday press conference, President Roosevelt had received members of the Federal Reserve Board and several of the regional bank governors. Among these was Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. All of the President's callers acknowledged publicly that their White House visit was purely a courtesy call, and this impression was confirmed officially by attaches of the executive offices.

The sudden halt in the skyrocketing

Wheeler Proposes Silver Amendment

President Would Be Given Right to Coin Both Metals Freely.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, yesterday proposed an amendment to the administration's inflation proposal to give the President power to remonetize silver, fix a ratio with gold and to provide for free coinage of both gold and silver.

The amendment was offered on behalf of Wheeler and Senator King (Democrat), Utah, who talked it over with President Roosevelt earlier in the day at the White House.

Administration support was indicated and inflationists called attention it was merely "permissive" and not mandatory, as are all the other sections of the plan.

Macon Handles Well On Her First Flight

The Navy's new giant airship Macon, successor to the lost Akron, sails gracefully after takeoff from the Goodyear-Zeppelin dock at Akron, Ohio, yesterday on her maiden flight.

Officers and Constructors Pleased After 13-Hour Debut.

Akron, Ohio, April 21 (A.P.).—The world's newest and largest airship—the Macon, sister of the ill-fated U. S. S. Akron—cruised nearly thirteen hours today on her maiden flight and then landed gracefully at her airdock here just before sunset tonight.

Hardly had the Macon returned to port before her officers and inspectors were expressing themselves as highly pleased with the ship's initial performance.

On her maiden cruise, the Macon shuttled back and forth across northeastern Ohio and along the edge of Lake Erie, as the first of a series of

PRESIDENT CHANGES RETIREMENT PLANS

Budget Head Says 30-Year Service May Not Be Cause of Discharge.

Intention of the administration to modify the sweeping proposal to retire all 30-year Government employes July 1 recommended to Congress Thursday in the independent offices bill was intimated yesterday at the White House.

At the same time, Budget Director Lewis S. Douglas assured Federal employes, it is not contemplated "that those who have been in the public service more than 30 years will be, of necessity, discharged."

Organized Federal workers, who will appear before the House Deficiencies Appropriations subcommittee Monday morning to ask that retirement be made optional, expressed general relief at Budget Bureau and White House expressions.

"It is gratifying to learn from the statement released at the White House that the Budget Director's intention is not as drastic as the language of the original recommendations would indicate," President Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, commented last night.

"We would be further gratified if the administration's attitude could be clarified so that a somewhat more definite meaning could be given Mr. Douglas' statement."

The Budget Bureau statement read:

"The provision authorizing the retirement, with retirement privileges, of Federal employes who have been in service for more than 30 years is for the purpose of meeting the situation which will develop under the retrenchment program.

"It is not contemplated, under the provision of the act, that those who have been in the service more than 30 years will be, of necessity, discharged.

"The President is given broad power to except those who have been in the service 30 years or more."

President Roosevelt yesterday was said to feel that retirement under the 30-year provision would be purely

Ruth Judd Sanity Quiz Night Session Canceled

Florence, Ariz., April 21 (A.P.).—Winnie Ruth Judd's sanity hearing was recessed late today until tomorrow by Superior Judge E. L. Green after tentative plans for a night session for the arguments of counsel had been abandoned.

The reason assigned the order for the recess was "physical inability of Assistant County Attorney Charles Reed to prepare and present his argument to the jury tonight."

Georges Ladoux, Captor Of Spy, Mata Hari, Dies

Cannes, France, April 21 (A.P.).—Commandant Georges Ladoux, former head of the French Counter-Espionage Service who was responsible for the arrest and conviction of the famous woman spy, Mata Hari, died today at the age of 58 years.

Steam Roller Accusation Made on Disposition of Resolutions.

By VYLLA FOR WILSON.

The closing event of the forty-second Continental Congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which has been in session at Constitution Hall all week, took place yesterday afternoon when the officers and delegates were received at the White House by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President.

Mrs. Roosevelt received the guests in the blue room with Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general. Each guest was introduced by a White House aid. Mrs. Magna was attended by her three personal pages, Miss Blanche Gaffney Ballock, Miss Carol Grosvenor and Miss Elizabeth W. Judd.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a dress of dark blue silk, with white collar and cuffs, and was without a hat.

As soon as the national officers and committee chairmen had been received, the chairman and vice chairman of pages, Miss Dorothy DeG. Jenkins and Miss E. Ray Englar, led the hundreds of white-clad pages to be presented to Mrs. Roosevelt. In the name of the pages, Miss Jenkins presented Mrs. Roosevelt with an old-fashioned bouquet of flowers.

Before the congress adjourned the newly elected vice president general

Woman Juror in Foshay Case Gets Six Months

St. Paul, Minn., April 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Genevieve A. Clark, Foshay mail fraud trial juror whose insistence on acquittal brought jury disagreement in 1931, was sentenced to six months in jail today for contempt of court.

She had been ordered resentenced in Federal District Court after the United States Supreme Court had upheld her conviction in Minneapolis.

Rome Celebrates 2,686th Birthday

Statues of Early Rulers Dedicated as Holiday Is Observed.

Rome, April 21 (A.P.).—The Eternal City observed its 2,686th birthday anniversary today by recalling the glory that was Rome in the time of the Caesars.

Premier Benito Mussolini dedicated large bronze statues of five emperors along the broad via Del Impero, which leads from his new offices in the Piazza Venezia to the ancient Colosseum.

Nine-foot likenesses of Vespasian, Augustus, Nerva, Trajan and Titus were dedicated today. One of Julius Caesar, facing the avenue from the ancient forum bearing his name, was put up several months ago.

Rome had a full holiday, with public offices, schools and stores closed. A number of public works, including government buildings and new streets, were inaugurated this afternoon by the premier.

HOUSE VOTES HALF BILLION STATES GIFTS

District Is Provided For in Direct Aid Bill by $135,000.

BALLOT OF 331 TO 42 DISMAYS OPPOSITION

Handling of Fund Is Left to Patronage; Plan Goes to Senate Today.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The House yesterday voted $500,000,000 in outright gifts to the States for unemployment relief, rejecting decisively a Republican alternative proposal to advance all funds on a loan basis.

Overwhelmingly approved by a 331 to 42 record vote, the measure not only extends direct aid to the States through their governors, but classifies the District as a State for relief purposes.

On the basis of relief funds already spent here this year, District Commissioners could acquire $135,000 immediately from the new Federal Emergency Relief Administration. As additional local funds are paid out, the District, like the States, can get $1 more for every $3 it has spent.

Goes to Senate Today.

The bill goes to the Senate today, where it may hit a parliamentary snag. The Senate already has adopted the similar Wagner relief bill, but the House Banking and Currency Committee substituted its own measure. The Senate must enact the House bill or insist on the original Wagner-La Follette version.

As passed by the House, jobs under the new relief set-up would be thrown open to patronage. On motion of Representative Claude A. Fuller (Democrat), Arkansas, the provision bringing the new agency under civil service was stricken from the bill. Cost of the agency is restricted to $350,000. On motion of Representative Carroll L. Beedy (Republican), Maine, the salary of the administrator was limited t. $8,500 a year.

Representative Robert Luce (Republican), Massachusetts, sponsored the effort to require the States to pay back advances, which he said should be considered as loans. The Republican motion was defeated, 180 to 61. Later, when an attempt was made to recommit the bill to write in the Luce motion it was beaten, 263 to 109.

Hoeppel Motion Lost.

There were efforts to increase the $500,000,000 total of the bill, notably one by Representative John H. Hoeppel (Democrat), California, who want-

Labor Seeks Quick Increase in Wages

A. F. of L. Says Inflation Must Be Offset by Buying Power.

(Associated Press.)

The American Federation of Labor will urge immediate increases in wages to place the wage earners in position to pay higher prices, expected as the result of the country going off the gold standard.

"The deleterious effect of currency inflation upon the social and economic life of working people," William Green, president of the executive council, said, "can only be offset through increases in wages and through an increase in mass purchasing power throughout the Nation.

"We propose to call upon labor to begin the fight immediately for wage increases and to use such legitimate influence and power as may be at its command to bring about the restoration of the buying power of the masses of the people."

PRESIDENT GREETS M'DONALD; STABILIZING OF AMERICAN AND BRITISH MONEY WILL BE TOPIC

Harris & Ewing.
Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and his daughter, Ishbel, receive warm welcome from President and Mrs. Roosevelt on arrival at White House yesterday. Left to right, Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss MacDonald, Prime Minister MacDonald, President Roosevelt and Capt. Walter Vernon, White House naval aid. The President walked to the drive to welcome his guests.

Prime Minister's Objects Told To Press.

COOPERATION PLEA IS MADE

Briton Believes Much Can Be Achieved for World.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Under the White House portico, in the glow of a spring afternoon, President Roosevelt yesterday welcomed the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, to the first of a series of momentous discussions between world leaders to solve the present financial and economic plight of nations.

Stabilization of British and American currency will be discussed in these conversations. In reply to questions last night, Mr. MacDonald said Great Britain had been hoping for a long time to have the opportunity to consider with other nations how best to reestablish monetary stability. This was in answer to a question regarding reestablishment of the international gold standard. War debts are one of the features to survey, he said, but he placed no special emphasis upon them.

The President had brushed aside the rigid rules of protocol and had gone to the driveway, hatless, between Mrs. Roosevelt and his daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, to greet his house guests. The long line of official cars swept up the driveway and as the British statesman stepped out of the first car with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the President came forward and warmly greeted him. Mrs. Roosevelt shook hands with Miss Ishbel MacDonald and put her arms around her as the photographers began taking pictures.

MacDonald Tells Trip's Object.

Shortly after his arrival, Mr. MacDonald saw the press in the executive offices of the White House. He was standing at the President's desk in front of the President's chair and was flanked by his personal secretary, Mr. Overton, and the press officer of the delegation, Michael Wright. Mr. Wright has inaugurated a new era in British diplomacy by offering the fullest cooperation with the press.

The British statesman talked for almost a half hour with sincerity and with feeling. At times he soared into lofty idealism when he talked of the present economic situation as it affected the laborers, the miners and other workers of today with no money in their pockets. There was a hint, too, of cooperation between him and the President in an effort to improve the condition of the workingman whether in Pittsburgh or in Manchester.

The chances for agreement on details of tariff revision looked very much improved after Mr. MacDonald

New Indictment Defers Date of Mitchell Trial

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—A superseding indictment, combining charges contained in two indictments handed up previously, was returned by the Federal grand jury today against Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, charged with income tax evasion for 1929 and 1930.

Handing up of this indictment, according to the Federal attorney's office, will mean that Mitchell's trial, to have begun next Monday, will be postponed until May 1 or 2.

6 AUTOS SMASHED IN FACTORY RIOTING

Police Fight 2,000 Strikers 15 Minutes to Subdue Violent Outbreak.

Peabody, Mass., April 21 (A.P.).—An outbreak that reached riot proportions late today among more than 2,000 striking leather workers resulted in six arrests and the smashing of six automobiles bearing workers from the B. E. Cox leather factory.

Police using tear gas and swinging clubs fought the strikers and sympathizers for more than fifteen minutes before gaining control of what they called the worst outbreak of the current labor troubles.

The six arrested were booked on the technical charge of throwing stones and held for arraignment tomorrow. Police said the charge would be changed to disorderly conduct. Two men and a woman were arrested earlier in the day on a charge of throwing stones at automobiles in which workers were being transported to the factories.

About 15 per cent of the more than 4,000 strikers returned to their benches several days ago when factories announced they had drawn up wage scales in accordance with demands of the workers. They also announced wages would not be lowered without permision of the State board of arbitration.

The majority of the strikers refused to return to work, however, unless the union, the National Shoe and Leather Workers Association, was formally recognized. This recognition was refused by the manufacturers.

The strike has been in progress for nearly a month.

3 Sisters Among 4 Killed in School Bus

Salisbury, N. C., April 21 (A.P.).—Four pupils were killed, three seriously injured and a number badly shaken up when a bus loaded with 48 school children was sidewiped by an empty bus in the pot neck section of Rowan County today.

Three of the dead were sisters. The dead are, Frances Louise Broadway, 11; Mary Jane Broadway, 8; Armanda Broadway, 6, and Curtis Hartley, 12.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia became a grandfather for the second time in two months last night when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Garland Pollard, jr., 2310 Connecticut avenue, at Garfield Hospital. The infant was named John Garland Pollard 3d. He weighed nearly 7 pounds.

The other grandchild, also a boy, was born in February to Mrs. Suzanne Pollard Boatwright, daughter of the governor.

HAVANA POST GIVEN TO SUMNER WELLES

Intense Interest in Cuban Situation Manifested in His Appointment.

Certifying its intense interest in Cuban affairs at this time, the administration yesterday drafted Sumner Welles, its Latin-American trouble-shooter, as ambassador to the island republic.

His selection for the Havana post is not the first time Mr. Welles has been dispatched to troubled areas in Central and South America. During the World War he was in the Argentine, whose German sympathies made his post a difficult one. He then served as chief of the Latin-American division of the State Department. Later he was President Harding's special envoy to the Dominican Republic and still later, although he was not officially connected with the State Department, he was called in to advise in the Leticia and Chaco matters.

Other factors in the choice of Mr. Welles make his appointment even more significant. Early this month he was appointed Assistant Secretary of State, after declining to serve either as Ambassador to Cuba or to Argentina. It is considered that only strong representations as to the gravity of the Cuban situation could cause him to take the Cuban post, or

Thames Is Ablaze In Big Rum Fire

Millions of Gallons Pour in River as Flames on Quay Spread.

London (Saturday), April 22 (U.P.).—Millions of gallons of rum caught fire on the "rum quay" at the West India docks early today. The spirits flowed into the River Thames as kegs burst and the water appeared to be on fire for hundreds of yards around the docks, endangering shipping.

The fire began at 9 o'clock last night and at 2 a. m. was still blazing furiously. Fire brigades from all over London rushed to the scene, including fire boats. The firemen's work was made dangerous by bursting rum barrels in the heat of the dancing flames.

The burning rum spread a red pall over the sky visible for miles and a huge crowd gathered. Firemen were unable to extinguish the flames and sought to prevent the blaze from spreading. They said the fire might burn for three days.

ALL BRITISH TRADE STOPPED BY SOVIET

Embargo Is Believed Likely to Bring End of Diplomatic Relations.

Moscow, April 21 (U.P.).—Total cessation of trade with England was ordered by the Soviet Union tonight in retaliation for the British embargo on Russian goods ordered earlier in the week.

The Soviet embargo order simultaneously raised obstructions to the transit of English goods through Soviet Russian territories.

The decree was the first step in Moscow in the trade war with Briton developing rapidly as a result of the recent trial of six Britons, representatives of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Co., on charges of espionage, bribery and sabotage.

Two of the men, William H. Thornton and William MacDonald, were sentenced to three and two years in prison, respectively. They are now in prison in Moscow.

Four others were permitted to return to England—three under expulsion orders following conviction also on the sabotage and other charges. Only one of the six, A. W. Gregory, was acquitted and released.

The trade war, it was feared, may now lead to an open break in diplomatic relations between Britain and the Soviet Union. Bitter feelings have developed on both sides, the Soviets feeling that England sought through "underhand methods" to influence Russian court justice.

The English feel, officially and among the general public, that the Britons in Moscow were tried unfairly on allegedly "trumped-up charges," and that the whole trial was an effort by the Soviets to cover up for domestic consumption the purported failure of their industrial five-year-plan at the expense of foreign engineers.

London, (Saturday), April 22 (U. P.).—The Daily Express today said it understood that the Soviet authorities had decided to release and deport William H. Thornton and William MacDonald, the two British representatives of Metropolitan-Vickers, Ltd., imprisoned in Russia for alleged sabotage.

The report said the two men would be deported before April 29. Four others involved in the trial are on their way to London, where they are to arrive tomorrow.

Curtis Resigns Office In Republican League

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Former Vice President Charles Curtis has resigned as national chairman of the National Republican League, it was announced tonight by J. A. Campbell, national director. The league was started last spring to establish local units of boys and girls under 21 to interest them in the history and principles of the Republican party.

Curtis, in resigning, wrote that professional engagements did not leave him time to devote to the league, which, he added, "I think has a great future."

GLASS AND WOODIN DIFFER ON BANK BILL

Senator Says Suggestions of Treasury Will Not Be Put in Measure.

(Associated Press.)

Evidence of a sharp conflict of opinion between the administration and the Senate drafters of the new permanent banking legislation yesterday developed as Secretary Woodin met behind closed doors with the Glass Banking Subcommittee.

Generous criticism by the Treasury head of the committee's bill led to predictions from some of its members that the legislation would be delayed and possibly redrafted.

Woodin asked the committee to confer with President Roosevelt before acting finally on its bill, which includes a controversial provision for creation of a $2,000,000,000 fund to insure deposits in Federal Reserve member banks.

Chairman Glass refused to detail Woodin's views, other than to say "he discussed with us some changes which had been suggested to him."

"Will they be made?" Glass asked himself. "They will not."

The impression gained by members of the committee was that the administration frankly was hostile to some parts of the bill, but was not yet ready to make definite recommendations of its own.

Bank reform legislation is on President Roosevelt's program for this session, but he has not announced what kind he wants.

One member of the committee described Woodin's attitude toward the bill as "lukewarm," but said he made few definite recommendations for changes. He sat in executive session with the committee for about an hour.

Persian Tribesmen Release Americans

Two Engineers Reported Freed Without Ransom After Four Days.

(Associated Press.)

Word of the capture and subsequent release of two American engineers by wandering tribesmen in Persia was received yesterday.

The Americans were named as Charles J. Carroll, of Towanda, Pa., director-general of the Southern Persia Railway, and an engineer named Erian, reported to come from Phoenix, Ariz. Seized by Lur tribesmen in the vicinity of Salehabad, advices said the two were released the night of March 11 after being held captive in the mountains four days.

Persian officials were described as stating that the release was effected without payment of a demanded ransom amounting to $6,600 at present exchange rates.

MACON COMPLETES HER MAIDEN FLIGHT

tests to determine finally whether the United States Navy will welcome her into the fleet. The Macon was built by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, which also constructed the Akron.

"The ship handled well," was the one-sentence statement made by Commander Alger H. Dresel, skipper of the Macon, as he descended the little stairway from the control officers' cabin after the flight.

The tight-lipped officer, who has commanded the Los Angeles and the Akron, refused to make any other comment, but he was smiling and waved a greeting to the crowds.

A more extended statement was made by Rear Admiral George Day, chief of the naval board of inspection, however.

"The ship made a very successful undocking and takeoff in spite of a cross-dock wind of about 12 knots," he said. "The ship handled well under way. Various tests on the day's program were successfully conducted. Among these trials of particular interest were turning and preliminary speed trials. Turning trials were practically all completed and speed trials indicate that the ship probably should meet her contract speed."

"The maiden flight of the Macon was a complete success," declared Dr. Karl Arnstein, chief designer of the airship.

Today's flight was to test the ship's general characteristics in the first of a series of runs to be made before the ship is accepted by the Navy. Officers planned to make the next flight Sunday depending upon favorable weather conditions.

Aboard were 105 persons, including 11 officers, 8 members of the naval board of inspection, and 31 engineers and inspectors of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation.

The Macon, christened by Mrs. William A. Moffett, widow of the rear admiral who was lost in the Akron crash, had been ready for her first flight for more than a week, but until today weather conditions were not suitable.

Republicans' Statement Against Inflation Act

The full text of the Republican statement opposing the administration's inflation move, signed by Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Walcott, of Connecticut, and Representatives Snell, of New York, and Luce, of Massachusetts, follows:

The administration inflation bill violates the most elementary principles of sound monetary, credit and financial policies. It is better designed to defeat than to promote business recovery.

It is said that the bill is necessary in order to avoid more radical legislation. What could be more radical than authority to issue printing press money and to give one individual, in direct violation of the Constitution, the power to alter at will the value of the medium through which all business transactions are conducted and the terms of all monetary obligations and the value of all property expressed?

While there are grave objections to the domination of the Federal Reserve System by the Treasury and it is hard to defend the unsound practice of the Government's borrowing directly from the central banks, yet in spite of these objections and the doubts which we entertain as to the efficacy of the remedy in view of the existing emergency and the recognized need for an advance in all commodity prices, we would be willing to support some such provision as section one for the expansion of credit by means of open market operations, even through direct purchases from the Treasury by Federal Reserve banks, providing discretion as to the amounts to be purchased up to the maximum provided were given the Secretary of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve officials, instead of the provision as it now stands which authorizes and practically compels the purchase of three billion dollars of Government securities, irrespective of the credit or banking situation.

The second section authorizes resort to the printing press and the issuance of fiat currency. It is not simply an alternative proposal to section 1, but may be supplemental. That is in addition to the $3,000,000,000 of bond-secured currency provided for by section 1, section 2 authorizes the issuance of $3,000,000,000 of notes with no reserve or security of any kind back of them—undisguised printing press or "say-so" money. In other words, the two sections combined mean $6,000,000,000 additional currency, half secured by paper and half just paper. This would represent a doubling of our already swollen circulation. It is inflation on a grand scale. If it does not produce the expected results the Government, having conceded the principle, will be forced to increase the dose.

If it does take and prices rise because of loss of confidence in the value of the country's currency, then the Government may well find, as did those of Germany and France, that inflation, once started, feeds upon itself and soon gets completely out of control.

This bill may well constitute the first step on the road to ruin which the German people took under compulsion, but upon which it is proposed we now voluntarily embark.

Let there be no misgiving as to those who bear the loss. Not the well-to-do with funds invested in common stocks, who are in any event best able to take care of themselves, but the wage earner who sees the cost of living fast outpace a lagging wage, the salaried classes and those with fixed incomes, the aged recipients of pensions and annuities, the savings bank depositors, the holders of one hundred twenty-two millions of insurance policies, the small investors with their life savings invested in one or two sound bonds, and last, but not least, the farmer. German farmers today are heavily in debt and pay higher interest rates than before the great inflation.

It may be urged that the President will not exercise the authority granted. Then why does he ask for it. And surely those who are powerful enough to force him to agree to this legislation will be strong enough to compel him to make it effective.

The third section would authorize the President in his discretion to fix the number of grains in the gold dollar but at not less than 50 per cent of the present standard. This is unconstitutional. Section 8 of the Constitution vests in the Congress the "power to coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin and fix the standard of weights and measures."

But aside from the constitutional feature it is unthinkable that there should be vested in any individual the arbitrary power to altar at will the value of money which so directly and vitally affects all human relationships, obligations, activities, rights and property.

To those who look upon the devaluation of the dollar as a means of raising the domestic price level this action will in our judgment prove disappointing. It will accelerate the world competition in currency depreciation and further depress world prices and markets to the detriment of our agricultural producers. It will only indirectly and as a long-time process result in an increase of domestic prices.

The second and third sections of the bill destroy whatever chance of success the first may hold. The Secretary of the Treasury has explained that the effect of the first proposal would be to create large excess reserves in the banks which seeking employment would expand credit and foster a business and price increase. But the key to a business revival is cheap long-term money which will encourage the revival of heavy industries and the purchase of capital goods. But who can afford to lend on time with the threat of inflation, dilution of the currency and the arbitrary decrease of the value of money staring him in the face? Who can afford to contract to build or to make any long-term commitment when the entire price, wage, and monetary structure may be altered at will by one individual before the contract falls due? These threats, this uncertainty, mean not business stimulation but stagnation and the complete elimination of a capital market. Prices may rise but they will rise as a result of fear, not of confidence, and no permanent prosperity can be erected on any such base.

It seems unnecessary to emphasize that these proposals may involve the partial repudiation by the Government of its obligations and the impairment of countless contracts affecting immense sums payable in gold of the existing standard of value—contracts made by our States, our municipalities, innumerable corporations and individuals and millions of purchasers in good faith of their securities and obligations.

SENATE SOUND MONEY GROUP FACES DRASTIC CLOTURE RULE

of stock and commodity prices in the principal American markets yesterday, and the sharp recovery of the dollar abroad, confirmed the report that the congressional drive for immediate monetary inflation already had lost much of the high-pressure steam which had been piped along during the last three days from upper Pennsylvania avenue.

With this situation ruling last night, influential members of both parties in the Senate expressed the opinion there need be no great hurry to grant the President unqualified dictatorial powers over currency, gold content and silver monetization.

In the face of a statement by Senator Robinson on the floor, that the requested extraordinary authority over the gold content of the dollar was essential to the conduct of this week's conversations with European statesmen, the confused parliamentary situation which was later permitted to snare the Thomas bill appeared highly significant. The Senate Banking and Currency Committee had reported the bill favorably after less than two hours' consideration, recommending its consideration as a separate measure rather than as an amendment to the farm bill.

After this report, however, Senator Robinson rejected a request by Senator Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, that the Thomas bill be enacted as a separate measure. Senator Robinson insisted it be attached to the farm bill.

Inflationists Are Gratified.

The statement of the Democratic leader was made on the floor a few minutes after a conference with President Roosevelt at the White House.

The upshot of the day's developments was that the inflation group on Capitol Hill was highly gratified by the apparently sure and speedy progress of their three-way money bill.

Although the brunt of the fight against greenbacks and revalorization of the gold dollar fell to the Republican side of the Senate, Democratic support of the Moley-Thomas-Pittman program was far from unanimous. In the Banking and Currency Committee, a Republican motion to strike out the gold revalorization authority carried by a vote of 9 to 8, with Chairman Fletcher and his Democratic colleagues, Glass, Gore and McAdoo voting with the five Republicans. A few minutes later, however, Senator Norbeck, an insurgent Republican, came into the committee room to cast his vote against the motion to strike out. With the resulting tie vote the motion was lost. After Senator Norbeck's appearance, each side added a vote in the committee, making the final result 10 to 10.

Republican Barrage Opens.

A stinging denunciation of the three-way inflationary measure signalized last night the opening barrage of organized Republican opposition to the money experiment. In a joint public statement Senators Reed and Walcott and Representatives Snell and Luce said "the administration inflation bill violates the most elementary principles of sound monetary, credit and fiscal policies. It is better designed to defeat than to promote business recovery."

Earlier in the day Senator Reed had led off on the floor with a vigorous assault upon the wild Democratic dash after the inflation rainbow.

"The whole history of inflationary experiments in other countries shows that it is almost as impossible to control inflation set in motion by printing-press money, following the abandonment of the gold standard, as it is to keep a charge of nitroglycerin in check when the burning fuse reaches it," Senator Reed exclaimed at one point.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, interrupted to offer in evidence a German paper note of 15,000,000,000 marks issued during the inflation of 1923.

"I offer the senator a note which, at its face value, would have been more than sufficient to wipe out the entire national debt of Germany," Senator Vandenberg said, as he handed the greenback to Senator Reed. "Today the value of this 15,000,000,000-mark note is approximately 2½ cents."

"Astronomical Denomination."

"I thank the senator," Reed responded as he reached for his billfold. "May I present in return a Russian ruble note of about the same astronomical denomination? I think they are about of equal value."

The galleries got the point

Senator Reed observed that at the height of the German inflation a single dollar of American gold would have been almost enough to wipe out the national debt of Germany in paper marks.

Earlier, in connection with a discussion of prospective building costs on the projected St. Lawrence waterway, Senator Reed remarked that previous estimates of cost now were meaningless "because no one can tell whether you are speaking in the real, gold dollars of yesterday, or the rubber dollars of tomorrow."

The Republican joint statement said the administration's inflation proposal called for $6,000,000,000 in additional currency, "half secured by paper, and half just paper." Such a venture was a mere plunge into "printing press or 'say-so' money," the statement added.

Pittman to Explain Inflation Over Radio

Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and coauthor of the Administration's inflation amendment to the farm bill, will speak on "Controlled Inflation" over WJSV and the Columbia network at 10:15 tonight.

Senator Pittman has been granted permission by the President to leave the White House dinner for Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to broadcast. The address is intended to bring the American people up to date on the Administration's monetary policy.

Life Sentences Upheld For 2 Kentucky Miners

Frankfort, Ky., April 21 (A.P.).—The Kentucky Court of Appeals today affirmed life prison sentences imposed on W. B. Jones and William Hightower, union coal mine leaders, who were convicted in Montgomery Circuit Court of murder conspiracy charges growing out of the battle of Evarts in Harlan County coal fields in May, 1931.

FRENCH TO ASSUME ROLE OF SPECTATOR

Herriot Delegation View Is Economic Parley Is Now Anglo-American.

S. S. Ile de France, en route to New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The French economic commission to the United States tonight assumed the role of highly interested spectators in what they regarded primarily as an Anglo-American fight precipitated by abandonment of the gold basis by the United States.

Forgetting for the moment their early resentment at the new American Treasury policy, which upset their plans for the conversations they will conduct at the White House, members of the French party privately were somewhat amused at the predicament of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, who landed in America to face an unexpected monetary situation.

Without permitting any official expression, the advisors of former Premier Edouard Herriot, chief of the commission, now apparently are of the opinion that President Roosevelt's move was inspired above all by exigencies of the American foreign exchange in the face of depreciated sterling.

According to one view taken by persons aboard ship, the Washington Government in the past year sought by every means possible to induce Great Britain to return to gold, but found that the British government was demanding too high a price for such a return.

It was decided, therefore, according to this opinion, that if the British were unwilling to elevate sterling to a gold basis, then the United States must seek the level of sterling by abandoning gold.

M. Herriot, however, knows that France also is involved, but is grateful he had a few days' notice before he goes to meet President Roosevelt.

In the words of one observer, "it's an Anglo-American affair, and we at present are only observers."

Woodland Beach Town Bill Vetoed

Ritchie Also Rejects Plan to Incorporate Cobb Island.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 21.—Proposals to incorporate Woodland Beach, Anne Arundel County and Cobb Island, Charles County, communities that are colonized largely by Washingtonians, were among the bills vetoed by Gov. Ritchie today.

Woodland Beach borders South River several miles from Annapolis and has undergone rapid development in the last few years. In vetoing the measure the governor said that while there are 1,400 lot holders in the settlement, only about eight families are year-round residents. He pointed out that the bill contains a number of objectionable features, chiefly that it would extend police power beyond corporate limits into adjacent private property; that it provides unusual restricted qualifications for voting at elections, and that the town commissioners would be authorized to meet in Washington, as well as at the beach, owing to the fact that the population is made up largely of summer transients.

Mrs. Ferguson Backs Sliding Oil-Output Tax

Austin, Tex., April 21 (A.P.).—The Texas House today passed and sent to the Senate a bill sponsored by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson to levy a graduated tax on the production of oil. The vote was 89 to 47.

A tax of 1 cent per barrel on daily per well production up to 10 barrels; 2 cents per barrel from 10 to 150 barrels; 5 cents from 150 to 250 barrels and 20 cents per barrel on production in excess of 250 barrels was proposed by the bill.

Garbled Orders Halt Salute to MacDonald

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—"When the boat bearing Prime Minister MacDonald comes into New York Harbor today," said an announcement from Army headquarters this morning, "the Army batteries on Governors Island will fire a 19-gun salute, in accordance with the dictates of international courtesy."

But when the boat bearing Prime Minister MacDonald came into New York Harbor the guns of Governors Island fired no salute.

"Something went wrong, we aren't just sure what," said one officer, when an explanation was sought.

"It was a big mix-up in orders," said another.

"I understand," said a clerk in the commandant's office, "that there was some question about how many guns a prime minister rates."

SHOALS BILL SLATED FOR ACTION MONDAY

House Leaders Plan Passage Following Debate; Curb on Amendments.

(Associated Press.)

Passage on Monday of another big Roosevelt project—development of the Tennessee Valley—last night was the definite program of House Democratic leaders.

Debate starts today under a plan approved yesterday by the Rules Committee. Six hours only would be allowed for talking and any amendments not offered by the committee would be prohibited.

Even Republicans on the Military Committee which wrote the new Hill Muscle Shoals bill were agreeable to this. Representative Goss, of Connecticut, one of the plan's strongest opponents, frankly said, he had suggested blocking amendments.

"Chairman McSwain has been so eminently fair in considering this bill in committee," Mr. Goss told the Rules Committee, "and its scope is so broad, that while opposed to the measure, I for one would be willing to have it go through in the best form possible.

"We of the minority felt the best interests of all would be considered by handling such an involved bill in this way."

But the entire project was assailed vigorously by Mr. Goss and five fellow Republicans of the Military Committee in a minority report.

An appeal for old garments which will be cast into the discard tomorrow in favor of new spring costumes was made yesterday by Brig. John G. McGee, director of the social service branch, Salvation Army. The old clothing is needed for distribution among the needy, Brig. McGee said.

Expecting an unprecedented demand for warm clothing next fall, Brig. McGee has increased storage facilities at the social service center so that woolens can be preserved during the summer.

Sea Casts Up Aluminum, Believed Akron Catwalk

Ocean City, Md., April 21 (A.P.).—A piece of aluminum, about 10 feet in length, presumably the catwalk from the lost Akron, was washed ashore a short distance north of Ocean City today.

A pair of shoes and several lead pencils also were found, tossed on the shore by the high waves that piled on the beach in the strong gale from the northeast.

Driver Aids Police In Holdup Capture

Tip About Suspicious Fares Leads to Arrest of Three Suspects.

A taxi driver's knowledge of psychology last night led to the arrest of three colored men, who, police say, earlier in the day held up a Sanitary Grocery Co. store at Vermont avenue and S street northwest, and rifled the cash register of $45 after binding the manager, Gilbert Cornise, 3534 Tenth street, hand and foot. The driver told police he picked the men up in the vicinity of Vermont avenue and S street and drove them to South Capitol and M streets. He became suspicious he said when they kept looking back.

After discharging the trio on South Capitol street, the cab driver gave his information to police, who recognized his description fitted the store bandits.

The three suspects were arrested on South Capitol street near M street, by Policemen W. P. Sager, E. G. Warren and E. C. Helms. They are: O'Dell Ansley, 28, 1502 Fifteenth street northwest; William Burns, 26, 1242 Half street southeast, and Milton Perry, 25, Anacostia, D. C. All are said to have confessed.

Right to Transport Beer to Be Tested

Virginia Court Ruling Due on Interstate Truck Shipments of Brew.

Fairfax, Va., April 21 (A.P.).—The first test of the legality of transporting 3.2 beer through Virginia in truckloads will be given in a trial justice court here Monday.

The hearing will be for Joseph Councilman, 30, of Sanford, N. C., charged with hauling 45 cases and a keg of Federally legalized beer without evidence showing its origin or destination.

Councilman was arrested Wednesday on the Richmond-Washington highway.

He claims the Commonwealth has no right to punish him for transporting an interstate shipment of the brew.

Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr ordered Councilman detained under the Layman act which classes beer with ardent spirits, when he could not produce evidence proving the shipment was interstate.

30-YEAR PLAN HITS MANY D. C. CHIEFS

50 Local Department Heads and Assistants Facing Forced Retirements.

Fifty department heads and assistants and between 75 and 100 subordinates have been in District service 30 years or more and are eligible for retirement under the proposed administration retirement program. District officials believe, however, that President Roosevelt would not force many of the department heads to retire, at least not at once, for fear of impairing the efficiency of municipal operation.

The list includes such outstanding figures as Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor; William P. Richards, tax assessor; Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer; Melvin C. Hazen, surveyor; George S. Wilson, public welfare director; Daniel E. Garges, veteran secretary to the commissioners, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Superintendent of Police, and Fire Chief George S. Watson.

The District Building was in a mild turmoil yesterday over the prospect of such wholesale retirement, but the excitement subsided somewhat later in the day after the White House had issued its statement.

Other officials on the retirement list as compiled by the auditor's office are:

Dr. D. P. Hickling, alienist; L. S. Johnson, J. T. Bardroff, Edward B. Fletcher, and Frank A. Gunther, assistant assessors; Simon McKimmie, second assistant auditor; Morris Hacker, Thomas L. Costigan, and Frank E. Edgington, city refuse division; Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers and his deputy, William D. Clark, jr.; Francis H. Stephens, assistant corporation counsel; Reid B. Ashworth, chief food inspector; Joseph F. Butts, chief sanitary inspector; Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, chief medical inspector; Aloysius S. Fennel, William M. Barton, Vernon Cleaver, William W. Curtiss, and Stuart J. Gass, highway department.

Herbert L. Davis, superintendent of insurance; William L. Peak, assistant superintendent at District Jail; Alfred R. McGonegal, plumbing inspector; Estelle Foster, chief probation officer, and Francis A. Sebring, clerk, police court; Grace B. Finney, chief circulation department of public library; William McQueeney, superintendent of school janitors; Marion C. Hargrove, purchasing officer, and his aid, William T. Teepe; John B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, and his assistant, Augustus D. Black; William I. Boyd, assistant surveyor; Walter A. Williams, assistant engineer; Amos A. Steele, probation office of District Supreme Court; Thomas A. Hudlow, superintendent of Temporary Home for Soldiers and Sailors; Clifford I. Lanham, superintendent of trees and parkings, and his assistant, Clarence B. Wallace; Douglas W. Holton, superintendent of water department, and Engineers Humphrey Beckett and Augustus S. Lay; Edward H. Grove, water registrar; and Richard F. Tobin, medical inspector in the Welfare Department.

HOUSE VOTES RELIEF FOR STATES, 331-42

ed to boost aggregate relief to $750,000,000. His motion was rejected on a viva voce vote.

Under the bill as redrafted by the House, $250,000,000 of the total of the bill would be set aside for "grant-in-aid" advances, with extensions made quarterly, computed at not more than one-third of the amount actually spent by the States.

The District has spent for relief in the first three months of this year a little more than $400,000, and would be entitled to obtain one-third that amount at once. On the basis of probable local expenditures for the entire calendar year, about $540,000 could be acquired. In the discretion of the administrator, grants under this fund could be terminated October 1.

The bill also provides a discretionary fund of $350,000,000 from which grants to States may be made when the combination of Federal and local funds proves inadequate. No one State could borrow more than 15 per cent of the total. In event of exhaustion of District monies, the Commissioners would be entitled to apply for aid under this second fund.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, now authorized to make loans to needy localities, would stop passing on applications ten days after the new relief administrator assumes office. The corporation then would cease all functions in connection with the fund, except to transmit to governors the amounts certified by the administrator.

The District already has acquired $625,000 for local unemployment relief, under the first deficiency bill. An additional $375,000 was provided under the second deficiency bill. The District bill now pending in the Senate would provide $1,250,000 more for the 1934 fiscal year.

Secretary of Labor Invited To Meet Miss Ishbel Today

Mrs. Roosevelt Arranges Introduction of Women Engrossed in Betterment of Workers; British Visitor Sees Her First Dog Show.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, the woman most in the news in this country on vital industrial subjects, has been invited to the White House this morning to meet Ishbel MacDonald, the comely British girl, who is deeply interested in improving working conditions of women of her country.

Ishbel's hostess, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, told of Miss Perkins' appointment with Ishbel at the National Capital Kennel Club dog show here last night that was an entirely new experience to the English girl, but a familiar scene to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Ishbel sat leaning toward the arena, taking in every detail of the first dog show she had ever seen, so she said, and pointing now to a Scottie and again to a Skye as she talked with Miss Marguerite Lehand, the President's secretary.

The meeting between Frances Perkins and Ishbel today may result in Miss MacDonald going up to Capitol Hill some time during her stay here and hearing testimony on the 30-hour week bill to which Miss Perkins has given her indorsement and made several amending suggestions.

Mrs. Roosevelt remarked laughingly, as the party returned White House-ward, that she and her daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall, were going horseback riding before breakfast this morning, but that Miss MacDonald would not accompany them.

"She still feels the steamer roll," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

The British girl who came last night to be Mrs. Roosevelt's guest until next Wednesday, had much in store for her—a state dinner tonight in the White House, the first sail on the reconditioned Sequoia, the first big garden party at the British Embassy, a luncheon today at the women's National Press Club.

PRESIDENT WARMLY GREETS PRIME MINISTER OF BRITAIN

had confessed to an understanding of that situation that dovetails in many respects with the theories of Secretary Hull. The prime minister believes that the present problem is beyond the efforts of any one nation to solve. No nation can devise a solution for itself alone and leave out others.

Because of the warm affection he holds for President Roosevelt and his profound belief in the President's spiritual power, MacDonald feels that something can be accomplished.

Some persons profess to think that politics is degrading. In MacDonald's opinion this is rubbish. In reality he believes it is a most elevating occupation or, as he prefers to call it, service—the most elevating service that man or woman can perform. Recalling that he, too, had come from very humble circumstances, the former labor leader professed the profoundest sympathy for humanity and a desire not to put more money in the pockets of men for money's sake, but to arm them for better service.

Plea for Cooperation.

In conclusion, MacDonald made an eloquent plea for cooperation. He faced the circle of newspapermen, and with his hands outstretched declared that his mission and the common purpose of the President and himself are not a party matter, not British, not American, he said, but a united effort to remove the burden from the shoulders of humanity.

Last night the meeting at the White House was as informal and homely as the hospitality of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt could make it. There were only the two Roosevelts and the two MacDonalds around the fireside. The vast scope of the problems was, of course, reduced to an exchange of ideas between the President and the prime minister late last evening, as the detailed discussions between the President and Mr. MacDonald will be postponed until today. No formal meetings have as yet been announced, but it is believed that this morning the British financial experts and the experts from the State Department here will get together. Sir Frederick Leith Ross, chief economic adviser to the British government and the permanent undersecretary, Sir Robert Vansittart, will meet with Secretary Hull and Assistant Secretary Raymond Moley. Dr. Herbert Feis, economist of the department, is also expected to be present.

Roosevelt's Vast Power.

President Roosevelt will inaugurate the White House discussions with more dictatorial power at his command than any other President in the peace-time history of the country. As Congress has voted him and still continues to endow him with the special faculties for adjusting the monetary condition of the country in the terms of the Thomas amendment to the farm relief bill, his power in the international conversations here continues to increase. Negotiations are still afoot to give him in the field of tariff legislation almost the same unlimited faculties for negotiating special tariff agreements without having the necessity of recourse to Congress.

The tremendous reserve power of these governmental uses will enable the President to take a commanding position in the MacDonald discussions as well as in the talks with the Canadian prime minister, Richard Bedford Bennett, which will begin here Sunday and with the French former premier, Edouard Herriot, who arrives here Monday.

The American dollar is now as much of a potential threat to international trade as was the British pound when the MacDonald mission left Southampton. Mr. MacDonald, however, disclaimed any sort of governmental agreement that might be aimed to the disadvantage of any currency.

Barriers Broken Down.

Newspapermen who had been accustomed to the Olympian remoteness of the British diplomatic service were agreeably surprised when Michael Wright, who had been a secretary of the British Embassy here in the days of Sir Esme Howard, announced that he would be available to newspapermen at all hours. This is believed to have been decided on by the foreign office following the notable success of Robert Peel in a similar capacity in the American Embassy in Paris.

The MacDonald visit has no ceremonial nature, so the arrival of the prime minister lacked some of its pomp and dignity of two years ago. At that time President Hoover had stationed a corps of Marines and soldiers at the train and a military guard presented arms while he was walking from his train to the exit.

Yesterday the special train bearing Mr. MacDonald and his party arrived in Union Station at 5:28 p. m. Secretary of State Cordell Hull was the first to speak to him. Warren Delano Robbins, chief of protocol, had gone to New York to receive the statesman in behalf of the President.

Others Extend Greetings.

After Secretary Hull, Col. Louis McH. Howe, the President's secretary, extended the President's greeting to his guest and to Miss MacDonald. The President's naval and military aids, Commander Pease Powell and Col. Campbell Hodges, were present. Officers of the Department of State included the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips, Jay Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the division of Western European affairs, and the entire staff of the British Embassy and the Canadian Legation, headed by the minister, Maj. W. D. Herridge.

The absence of the Irish Free State Minister, Michael MacWhite, was remarked by several. Mr. MacWhite was taken suddenly ill yesterday and will be confined to a sanatorium for the next four or five days. Senator Connally, a member of President de Valera's cabinet, who is now in this country, left Washington the day before yesterday also and will return on Wednesday.

Busy Day Mapped Out Today for MacDonalds

The British Prime Minister will make the ceremonial calls of usage this morning on the Vice President, John Nance Garner, on Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey and Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The remainder of the day's program follows:

11:30 a. m. Miss Ishbel MacDonald receives the press.

1:00 p. m. The Prime Minister is luncheon guest at the National Press Club.

1:00 p. m. Miss Ishbel luncheon guest at Women's Press Club.

4:00 p. m. Garden Party at the British Embassy.

8:00 p. m. Formal dinner at the White House.

LIBBY HOLMAN'S BOY WILL GET $2,000,000

Agreement Gives His Half-sister Equal Share in Reynolds Estate.

Concord, N. C., April 21 (A.P.).—An agreement whereby the infant son of Libby Holman Reynolds and his half-sister, Anne Cannon Reynolds 2d, would each receive $2,000,000 of the estate of Smith Reynolds, their father, was disclosed here today. The agreement is still subject to approval by a court of proper jurisdiction.

Details of the agreement were contained in a letter written by W. N. Hendren, Winston-Salem attorney for the millionaire Reynolds tobacco family.

The letter was made part of the answer of Mrs. Joseph P. (Annie L.) Cannon, coguardian of little Anne, to a complaint filed by the Cabarrus Bank & Trust Co., of Concord, joint guardian, seeking to compel her to become party to a legal action to invalidate the agreement by which the baby girl's claim to her father's estate was renounced for $500,000.

A hearing on the bank's petition is scheduled to be held here Monday, before Judge Wilson Warlick.

The shares of Smith Reynolds, who was shot to death July 6, in his Winston-Salem home after a drinking party, in the fortune of his father, the late R. J. Reynolds, has been estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Hendren's letter, dated March 4, and addressed to counsel for 2-year-old Baby Anne, said the agreement provides that the residue of the estate, after the settlements upon Anne and Libby Holman Reynolds' son, shall be devoted to the establishment of a philanthropic foundation in North Carolina. This sum was unofficially placed at from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Libby Holman Reynolds, torch-singing favorite of Broadway, who was charged with murder of her husband, but absolved for lack of evidence, several months ago announced she would be satisfied with a "modest settlement" for her son, and expressed a hope that the remainder might be used for eleemosynary purposes.

MRS. ROOSEVELT RECEIVES D. A. R. CONGRESS DELEGATES

and the two new honorary vice presidents general and the newly elected State regents and State vice regents were confirmed by the congress and installed in office, the outgoing officers placing the ribbon badges of office about the shoulders of their successors.

Last night the annual banquet was held at the Willard Hotel, with Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, as toastmistress. Mrs. Frank H. Hight, of the District of Columbia, was honorary chairman, and the chairman was Mrs. Frederick D. Reynolds, of North Carolina. The vice chairmen were Mrs. Frederick T. F. Johnson, Miss Margaret Withers and Mrs. Rice W. Ewans. Members of the committee were Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, Mrs. Thaddeus M. Jones, Mrs. Edward A. Keys, Mrs. William A. Kipp, Mrs. H. H. Knipe, Mrs. George Middleton, Mrs. Ward T. Mixwell and Mrs. J. Edgar Smith. Greetings were given by Mrs. Magna and honorary officers and national officers.

The various delegations presented many gifts to the Library, Museum and Constitution Hall at this congress, the presentations being the order of business at the closing session of the congress.

The acting State regent of Ohio, Mrs. John S. Heume, of Xenia, presented a clothes brush used in Revolutionary times up to the year 1788, the gift of Miss Gertrude Franklin, of Ohio. Miss Franklin has also presented a gauze handkerchief made in 1788. A canteen used by Jonathan Armstrong, a Revolutionary soldier, was presented through the acting State regent of Ohio, by Mrs. Donald W. Goss, great-great-great-granddaughter of the Revolutionary owner. Three pieces of dresses from those once worn by Martha Washington at Mount Vernon were presented by Mrs. Samuel Haynes, of Ohio.

A pink Staffordshire plate once owned by Elizabeth Evans, sent from Wales for her wedding dinner, prepared by George Washington's cook, was presented by the State regent of Indiana, Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Bryne, of Brookville, for Miss Martha Couch and Miss Mary Frances Couch.

Mrs. Hobart's Affiliations.

The State regent of Maryland, Mrs. Henry Zoller, jr., presented dessert and coffee spoons made for William Pinckney in 1796 in London, when he was commissioner to England, appointed by President Washington. These are given to the Museum at Memorial Continental Hall, by Mrs. Ruth A. Pinckney Zoller, of Maryland.

Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, honorary president general, of Cincinnati, took the floor at the morning session to explain her relations with the Woman's National Patriotic Conference for National Defense during her administration as president general, which ended last April. Mrs. Hobart said the D. A. R. during her administration did not affiliate with this body, but cooperated with it and contributed the D. A. R.'s part toward the expenses of its conventions.

Mrs. Hobart cast her vote against the resolution introduced by the supporters of the president general, Mrs. Magna, directing that the D. A. R. refrain from affiliating with the Woman's National Patriotic Conference on National Defense, the American Coalition and all other outside organizations. Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, also an honorary president general, who had cooperated with the Woman's National Patriotic Conference for National Defense, did vote for the resolution.

Mrs. Brosseau Explains.

Mrs. Brosseau rose later in the session to explain, saying she voted to sustain the policies of the national organization, but with the understanding that the president general is willing any member cooperate personally with other societies, and "that it is the law of the land for individuals to assume personal positions on any question."

Accusations of steam roller methods in tabling resolutions offered by certain factions were made after resolutions offered by Mrs. Robert W. Sims, of Jacksonville, Fla., sponsored by Princess Cantacuzene, were not reported out by the resolutions committee. The resolutions called for explanation of the reason the D. A. R. "did not take its logical expected place in the great movement" of representatives of thousands of national, local, civic and patriotic organizations against the recognition of Soviet Russia in a meeting held at the Washington Auditorium last Monday night.

Mrs. Frank Puller, of Chicago, demanded to know the disposition in the resolutions committee of a resolution submitted by her in regard to the noncommissioning of 50 per cent of the graduating class at the Naval Academy in Annapolis this year. Miss Emma Crowell, chairman of the resolutions committee, explained that the Navy is already "overofficered."

Sadness at Annapolis.

Mrs. Puller, who says that her son was in naval aviation during the World War and was one of those missing at the Battle of Verdun, said she has recently been at the Naval Academy and that the members of the graduating class are "very sad." She called attention to the law that provides 50 per cent may be given commissions but does not stipulate that the whole class may not be commissioned. She pointed out, however, that Congress has only appropriated money enough to commission 50 per cent. The suggestion to consider this resolution was voted by the D. A. R. Some of the members who insist that the D. A. R. express itself on this subject will endeavor to have it taken up in the meeting of the national board of management, which will meet in Memorial Continental Hall today.

The D. A. R. is air-minded. This was proved in the closing session of the Continental Congress when the delegates, asked by Amelia Earhart to show their hands as to how many would accept an invitation to be flown by her to their homes, almost unanimously signified their desire to fly with America's premier aviatrix.

Miss Earheart stated that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had done more than any one else in the last few months to popularize flying as a means of transportation through her constant use of airplanes for travel. The famous flyer also said she considered commercial flying as another possible means of national defense. She advocated the theory that women should not advocate armaments unless they are willing to carry arms. "Equality with men is essential in all lines," the flyer said. "Women should be drafted in war as well as men."

SUMNER WELLES APPOINTED NEW AMBASSADOR TO CUBA

would cause the department to dispatch its Assistant Secretary to Havana.

The other factor of significance lies in the strong rivalry for the Cuban post. A favorite candidate was John Cudahy, Milwaukee real estate dealer, who had excellent backing on the Hill. Francis White, a State Department career man, also had been prominently mentioned. Both these were passed over for Mr. Welles.

Yesterday's appointment was greeted with enthusiasm by Oscar Cintas, Cuban Ambassador to this country. He said:

"I am very happy that the President has made this choice. I receive the news with the greatest of pleasure. The President could not have selected a more able and competent diplomat for the post. Mr. Welles is a very good friend of the Latin-American people, and I think it fortunate for Cuba that Mr. Roosevelt selected him for this place. The President has done us a great kindness."

Mr. Welles' name was sent to the Senate yesterday by President Roosevelt, and speedy confirmation is expected. The new ambassador makes his home in Washington and at Oxon Hill in nearby Maryland. He was graduated from Harvard in 1915 and went immediately to the State Department, serving first in Tokyo.

The President also submitted for confirmation yesterday the name of Theodore A. Walters, of Idaho, as First Assistant Secretary of the Interior. He led Idaho Democrats to victory in the last two general elections, serving as chairman of the State committee. Mr. Walters, who is now practicing law in Caldwell, Idaho, was attorney general of that State during the World War.

Following his policy of reappointing the heads of technical divisions of the Government, the President sent to the Senate yesterday the nomination of Raymond S. Patton as Director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Mr. Patton, who lives at 3920 McKinley street northwest, has been director of the Survey since 1929.

Other appointments announced yesterday were Francis Winfred Peck, of Minnesota, to be a member of the Federal Farm Board, and Thomas F. Thomas, of Utah, to be Register of the Land Office at Salt Lake City.

New Code Drafted For D. C. Insurers

Commissioners Send Bill to Congress for Change in Life Section.

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to Congress a bill designed to correct the inequalities and conflicting provisions of the life insurance sections of the District Code. The bill was prepared by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and Superintendent of Insurance Herbert L. Davis, after a previous revision had been withdrawn following hearings at the Capitol.

"The object of the proposed law," the accompanying letter stated, "is to prevent the possibility of fraud, both in insurance companies organized in the District under the present code and insurance companies chartered elsewhere which are authorized to conduct business within the District.

Local insurance companies would be required to maintain larger reserve funds, and out-of-town companies operating in the District would be required to keep agents here. The latter provision would enable disgruntled policyholders to file suit against a foreign company in District courts.

Investigation of Mills Is Proposed by Texan

(Associated Press.)

The return of Ogden L. Mills to Republican councils at the Capitol in the fight against the Roosevelt inflation program was met yesterday by Representative Dies (Democrat), Texas, with a demand for investigation of "lobbying" in general and Mills in particular.

Dies introduced a resolution calling for a special House committee of five to do the investigating.

GAPS IN DIKE FLOOD FARMS IN ARKANSAS

30,000 Acres Expected to Be Inundated; Waters Recede in Missouri.

Kennett, Mo., April 21 (A.P.).—Two breaks occurred here tonight in levees along the Arkansas side of the flooded St. Francis River, and as Askansas farm lands were inundated the situation on the Missouri side improved.

Observers predicted that 30,000 or 40,000 acres of rich farm land in Clay County, Ark., would be covered by the rapidly spreading waters. Farmers fled before the flood.

Ten thousand acres of land on the Missouri side of the stream were inundated earlier today when 600 men guarding levees here lost a round of the battle with the turbulent stream. As the water rushed through the breaks in the Arkansas dikes it receded rapidly from Missouri land. The flood dropped 8 inches in 28 minutes here immediately following the new breaks.

Men guarding and strengthening the levees were caught in the swirl of water and were forced to wade waist deep to dry land. They were put to work on other weakening points of the dike.

Work on Missouri levees was continued under the direction of Army engineers with the aid of National Guardsmen. The crest of the flood was expected to hit Kennett between midnight tonight and 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Power Consumers May Save $200,000

Local Economy Is Cited if Electric Tax Is Shifted to Producers.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech yesterday estimated that District electric customers would save approximately $200,000 a year if the Senate follows the House in transferring the 3 per cent power tax from the consumer to the producer.

The saving will not be entirely clear, however, as rates are fixed in Washington under a consent decree based on excess profits. As the Federal tax, if paid by the Potomac Electric Power Co., would be taken out of operating expenses, it will, in the final analysis, be deducted in part from the profits available for further rate cuts, Mr. Keech explained.

Just how much would be paid, therefore, by the public in loss of rate cuts and how much by the company in loss of excess profits would depend upon the company's earnings.

Under the existing consent decree, half of profits in excess of 7 per cent and below 8¼ per cent, in any 12-month period are to be devoted to rate reductions; 60 per cent of profits between 8¼ and 9 per cent, and 75 per cent of earnings above 9 per cent would be similarly applied.

6,400 Take Stock In Northeast Bank

Conservator Says Plans to Reopen Must Be Held in Abeyance.

More than 6,400 subscriptions toward $250,000 worth of new stock required to reopen the Northeast Savings Bank, were reported yesterday by G. F. Hoover, conservator. The new stock would be sold at $25 a share.

No statement as to definite plans for reopening the institution will be forthcoming until the period for solicitation has closed, Mr. Hoover said.

Meanwhile, it is understood that definite progress has been made between representatives of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Reserve System and the Treasury Department on a general plan for reopening closed District banks in the hands of conservators.

30-Hour Week Hit By Boss Printers

Typothetae Asks What of Rush Orders Should Plan Become Law.

Discussing rush seasons in the printing industry, members of the United Typothetae of America, opening a two-day convention at the Carlton Hotel yesterday, stated that the 30-hour week bill would hamper production due to its inflexibility.

Although no strenuous objections were voiced, members of the printing group said in a discussion that during Christmas, New Year's and other seasons when the printing industry has to speed up production, a rigid adherence to the 30-hour week provision would interfere with the filling of contracts.

RITCHIE VETOES 35 BILLS; 400 SIGNED

Chain Store Special Tax Approved on Wishes of Merchants.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 20.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today vetoed 35 bills passed at the recent session of the General Assembly and signed more than 400 other measures. He had previously given his approval to more than 100 other proposals. Thus nearly 600 new laws will be placed upon the statute books. The actions today cleared the governor's calendar of all legislative work.

One of the most controversial measures that received the governor's approval was that placing an extraordinary tax on chain stores. The bill was the subject of a bitter fight at the legislative session and later a protracted hearing was held by the executive at which advocates and opponents presented their views. In approving this law, the governor bowed to the wishes of the independent merchants who, he said, were responsible for the business progress of the State.

The entire legislative program affecting Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, as well as sections of southern Maryland, and practically all local measures for other counties, received the governor's approval.

Among the bills vetoed by the governor were the following:

Permitting unlicensed persons to act as undertakers; to classify the theft of less than $25 as a misdemeanor instead of a felony, and permit such cases to be heard by police magistrates; prohibiting betting in Washington County, where handbooks on racing are now legal; removing the four-year limit on the collection of taxes; defining an area in the Potomac River in which there should be a twelve-month closed season on oysters; proposing a bond issue for the construction of water and sewerage systems at Clear Springs, Washington County, which has a population of 450; providing that evidence of the failure of a motor vehicle driver to stop on command of an officer should not be admissible unless the officer was in uniform and displayed his badge of authority; to exempt from taxation property owned by Boy Scout organizations.

Dealing with motor vehicles for hire, which was in conflict with another bill already signed; setting up motor vehicle regulations, which also conflicted with another measure that had been signed; providing that the Frederick County fair should be entitled to hold two five-day race meetings a year; exempting Garrett County from the general law requiring the annual publication of a statement of county expenses; extending from one to three years the period for redemption of property sold for taxes in Garrett County; to require the commissioners of Allegheny County to notify the previous owner before selling property purchased at a tax sale.

Eleven bills reducing salaries of public officials in Alleghany County were vetoed because the officials have taken voluntary reductions larger than those proposed.

discretionary and need not be widely used.

Following yesterday's White House press conference, it was understood that Army officers furloughed on half pay under the independent offices bill recommendations will not be separated from the service.

Power Discretionary.

President Roosevelt was said to be of the opinion that furloughs under this provision might not be generally ordered, this also being discretionary with the President. He was said to feel that many of the men could be used as officers of the Conservation Corps.

Under an old law, the President already has authority to furlough Navy officers on half pay.

Estimates of Government employes who would be retired if all those having 30 years service were laid off range from 18,000 to 25,000. National Federation of Federal Employes officials said they thought the lower figure is nearest correct.

It was learned that if a compulsory 30-year retirement provision is enforced, four employes who are only 43 years old would be forced out of the service. There are five in the service who are 44, 10 who are 45, 21 who are 46, 49 who are 47, 93 who are 48, 180 who are 49 and 343 who are only 50.

One Survivor in Office.

Should the compulsory provision go through, 27 employes in one New Jersey office, where only 28 Federal workers are employed altogether, would be retired. In one local office, the steamboat inspection service, the head of the service and four out of nine supervisors would be retired.

Chairman Buchanan of the House Appropriations Committee, said yesterday he thought the provision should be made more flexible. He said he favored doing "justice" by the Federal worker, declaring it would be "autocratic" to sever at one sweep all 30-year employes from the rolls. He will permit representatives of Federal employe groups to testify on the section before his committee Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Speaker Rainey said the bill probably will be reported to the House late next week.

Expert Sees War Debt Payment as Silver Aid

Spokane, Wash., April 21 (A.P.).—Belief that acceptance of silver in payment of war debts would consume the present abnormal surplus of white metal was expressed here today by Robert T. Banks, president of the Northwest Mining Association.

With the surplus removed, he said, the metal would be left to seek its natural level.

Planted by Secretary Morton, father of Arbor Day, this elm from Arbor Lodge, Nebr., has grown at Twelfth street and Mall road since April 22, 1895. J. Wise Byrnes in charge, greenhouses, is inspecting the new foliage. Difficulty was had nearing the tree, surrounded as it is by metal, lumber and junk in general. The tree marker is well buried beneath the debris.

TODAY marks the centenary of the birth of J. Sterling Morton, father of "Arbor Day." He also served as the Third Secretary of Agriculture.

Arbor Day was first observed in Nebraska April 10, 1872, on which occasion more than 1,000,000 trees were planted. Thousands of trees, thriving in once weedless prairies of the West, are living witnesses to the beneficence of this project.

Although Mr. Morton was the "father of Arbor Day," the first to call attention in this country in an impressive way to the value and absolute need of trees—their beauty and economic value—was that eminent scholar and wise observer, George P. Marsh, who for many years represented the United States at the courts of Italy and Turkey.

Arbor Day originated in this manner: At an annual meeting of the Nebraska State board of agriculture, held in the city of Lincoln, January 4, 1872, J. Sterling Morton introduced a resolution, which was unanimously adopted after some little debate as to the name, some of those present contending for the term "sylvan" instead of "arbor," the latter word being chosen.

Arbor Day, from being only an humble expedient of one of our Western States a few years ago, has become a national holiday and one of our important institutions. It is now not only a day for tree planting for economic and aesthetic purposes, but its observance has been made the means of securing much valuable knowledge in regard to plant and tree life, of cultivating in the young the powers of observation, and kindling in their minds an interest in natural objects which will be a life-long source of benefit and pleasure.

Reforestation, as now set in practice by President Roosevelt, is a long-range investment of national importance and the plan focuses attention on the value of local and State-wide plant-a-tree campaigns.

D. A. R. of County Plan Marker Rites

Braddock Trail Dedication to Be Held on River Road Today at 2 P. M.

Picturesque ceremonies will feature the dedication of a marker today at 2 p. m. at the intersection of Wisconsin avenue and River road by the Janet Montgomery County Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The marker indicates the old Indian trail used by George Washington and Gen. Braddock in their campaign against warring tribes.

The program will include speeches by persons prominent in patriotic and civil societies and will be open to the public. The dedication concludes the Bicentennial work of the chapter, but is the beginning of a program which includes the marking of the famous highway and trees and homes in Montgomery County associated with the early history of the country.

The research work which made placing of the stone possible was done by Mrs. Lilly C. Stone and was presented to the District Commissioners by Mrs. J. Henry Brown, county chapter regent.

Former Washingtonian Returns 'Kidnaped' Son

Milwaukee, Wis., April 21 (A.P.).—Ronald French, 5, was returned unharmed to the home of his maternal grandparents here this week after an absence of more than three months.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Dorothy French, who had obtained a kidnaping warrant against her divorced husband, Robert, formerly of Washington, D. C., brought the child back Monday from Memphis, Tenn., where she said the father had left him at a rooming house.

SON FREED, FACTOR SPURS KIDNAP HUNT

Father 'Knows' 8 Abductors While Jerome Returns Home Safely.

Chicago, April 21 (A.P.).—Jerome Factor wrote the climax to his sensational kidnaping by appearing safely at his home early today.

Swift sequel to the case was predicted by the father, John, in the apprehension of the conspirators who kept the 19-year-old university student prisoner for eight days.

"I'll push the hunt for the kidnapers," he said. "We had plenty of clews—hot clews. And we were closing in on them.

"I am pretty sure I know who the guilty men are."

About eight men were involved in the abduction, Factor said, none of them men who had achieved much prominence in the underworld hall of infamy.

When Jerome arrived at the home of his mother, Mrs. Leonard Marcus, early this morning, he had an eight-days' growth of beard, and $14.05 in his pocket.

When seized the night of April 12 he carried $15 in bills with him. The difference represented taxi fare from the point of his release to his home and, the elder Factor emphatically said, the sole expense of his return.

He repeated his denial that the $100,000 ransom demanded—or any part of it—had been paid.

Jerome's routine of inactivity during his imprisonment, he related, consisted of eating, sleeping and reading—mostly newspaper accounts of himself.

He never had an opportunity to see his captors, he said, who entered his dark, small "cell" with pillow cases over their faces. He could not tell the whereabouts of his place of imprisonment, but estimated it was three hours' drive from his point of release in northwest Chicago.

RIALTO

"BE MINE TONIGHT." Universal release of Gaumont's British picturization of a story by I. V. Cuba and A. Joseph, with Jan Kiepura, Magda Schneider, Sonnie Hale, Elsa and Owen, Athene Seyler and Betty Chester. Directed by Anatole Litvak.

Fulfilling even the most extravagant claims that preceded it to Washington, this unusual British-made film has so captivated the Capital's musical ear as to make a second week at the Rialto an inevitable concession to its popularity and the public's demand.

As has been repeatedly stated in these columns, "Be Mine Tonight" is a superior achievement only in the inspired uses which it makes of unique photographic effects and a catholic choice of songs and operatic arias employed as a vital factor in both plot and motivation. The story is of less substantial merit than the quality of its treatment deserves.

From the standpoint of musical perfection, however, this melodious gem occupies a niche that effectively isolates it from the great mass of attempted blendings of music and dramatic narrative. It not only boasts a light and tuneful score of its own, but manages to make intelligent and delightful use of arias and scenes from "Rigoletto," "La Traviata" and "La Boheme" to point its climacteric moments.

In the superb tenor of Jan Kiepura, young Polish opera star, "Be Mine Tonight" boasts a voice that can only be matched in this country by Lawrence Tibbett's incomparable barytone.

The background of Swiss Alps lends the film a pictorial environment of extraordinary grandeur and beauty.

A cartoon comedy and new Universal News, with Graham McNamee, complete a bill that has been roundly applauded at every performance since its inaugural a week ago last night.

"MUSSOLINI SPEAKS." Biographical study of the career of Benito Mussolini, compiled by Jack Cohn, with cooperation of Italian government; described and interpreted by Lowell Thomas. "PAROLE GIRL." Picturization of a story, "Dance of the Millions," featuring Mae Clarke, Ralph Bellamy and Hale Hamilton, with Marie Prevost and Ferdinand Gottschalk. Directed by Edward F. Cline. Both Columbia Pictures releases.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Although in its content and the manner of its presentation "Mussolini Speaks" is, in form, an elaborated and skillfully articulated newsreel, excellent judgment in its preparation is reflected in the completeness and chronological accuracy of its story of the amazing career of a dominant figure in contemporary world history.

There is no fiction in this stirring recital of the rise from obscurity to power of a personality that must leave its permanent mark on the historical record of our time. And if it be said that there is no drama in this unembellished story of a blacksmith's son who displaced a king, then there has never been drama in the life of any Cassar!

For Benito Mussolini is a Caesar. No Roman Emperor ever wielded a wider power or worked more assiduously or more productively for the enhancement of his empire than Il Duce has wrought for Italy since his assumption of the premiership following the bloodless revolution of his own instigation and own personal leadership.

It is this event that rather naturally divides the picture into two major movements—the first, Mussolini's background, from his village birthplace through the socialistic period of his young manhood to the war; the second, his famous march on Rome, the seisure of power and all that has followed since.

A great deal of this later footage is devoted to Il Duce's deliverance of a speech from a baloony in Milan, to the greatest crowd ever addressed by man, in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the coup d'etat that placed him at the head of his country's government, an absolute dictator.

As he recites the achievements of his regime—government, navy, merchant marine, industry, railroads, road building, restoration of the ancient glories of the Eternal City, athletics, waterways, agriculture, architecture, &c., &c.—the actual activities that have marked the progress of each department of development are revealed by the familiar device of the flash-back.

All this is crisply and concisely described, with occasional literal translation of Mussolini's words, by Lowell Thomas, who prefaces the picture with a brief foreword outlining its general purpose.

In everything he says or does Mussolini is dynamic, arresting, vital, leading, apparently, a life charmed against the assassin's mad menace and guarded by the gods to fulfill an astounding destiny among the giants of the earth.

Effectually dwarfed by the heroic proportions of the Mussolini sketch is "Parole Girl," a simple little fable in somewhat the "Within the Law" mood and manner, that would seem less trivial in an environment less imposing. However, even so, the story of the attempted vengeance of a girl paroled from prison is not wholly lost. If it does nothing else, it reveals the astonishing metamorphosis that has taken place in Mae Clarke, formerly a more or less rowdy-dow sort of lackadaisical actress who here emerges as a smartly turned out young woman, the beneficiary of all the most adroit tricks of beauticians and modistes. She finally works out a satisfactory revenge by marrying Ralph Bellamy, the particular object of her anger, and thwarting Marie Prevost's efforts, as an earlier bride, to do him dirt!

The Pathe News and N. V. A. screen appeal for funds complete a worthy double-bill.

METROPOLITAN

"A BEDTIME STORY." Paramount picturization of a novel by Ray Hornaman, adapted to the screen by Waldemar Young and Nunnally Johnson, with music by Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, starring Maurice Chevalier, with Helen Twelvetrees, Edward Everett Horton, Adrienne Ames, Earle Foxe, Leah Ray and Baby LeRoy. Directed by Norman Taurog. Reviewed from preview screening Tuesday, April 11.

This particular disclosure of how a gay young blade's feverish flirtations foundered on a foundling, it will probably seem to some, is just a trifle topheavy with splendor. The story is not quite robust enough to support all of the opulence that has been heaped upon it.

Or perhaps it is that Rene, who found a tiny mite of a baby on the back seat of his Rolls Royce and discovered he was fond of it just in time to snatch it away from the police, is a richer rich young man than usually find abandoned babies in their cars.

At any rate, here we have the comparatively meager fable of a wealthy young idler's devotion to an irresistible, but casual, youngster, tricked out with all the opulence and magnificence of some such adult romance, say, as "Love Me Tonight." In fact, there is a suspicious resemblance between the palatial scenes of "A Bedtime Story's" later sequences and the baronial castle footages of the earlier Chevalier vehicle. It seems like a good deal of pother to make over such a little wisp of humanity as "Monsieur Baby."

For this, beyond controversy, is Baby LeRoy's picture. Chevalier, to be sure, sings his quota of songs, matches wits, bandies words and shares a surprising maternal instinct with his feminine associates, but after all is said and done, if there were no Baby LeRoy, there would be no picture!

A precocity beyond his obviously few months is bestowed upon this prodigious infant by the process known to the trade as "dubbing in" sound effects. It would be a miracle if even so alert and engaging a young man as Mons. Baby should contrive to coo, gurgle and da-da so precisely at the proper moment as Master LeRoy does throughout this film.

The part where he smashes all the expensive watches he can get his pudgy little hands on, in high glee, is quite believable!

There is, of course, the adult romance that runs parallel to the sudden devotion for the kid that springs up in the heart of Rene. While in the process of making mortal enemies of a long list of ravishing paramours through sheer neglect, he manages also to fall desperately in love with the "nurse," who turns out to be a stranded American vaudeville artiste in need of a job in Paris.

It is all not in the least the sort of thing Chevalier has been in the habit of doing, but, what with his songs, slightly ribald comedy and all that gorgeousness of setting and embellishment, it may do quite as well in the popular view as his racier and strictly grown-up romances. Then, again, it may not.

Helen Twelvetrees, as the nurse; Edward Everett Horton, as a droll gentleman's gentleman; Earle Foxe, as a sappy young husband; Adrienne Ames, as his fiery young wife; Leah Ray, as a tempestuous beauty of the music halls, and the numerous others who are importantly cast, including Reginald Mason and Henry Kolker, contribute effectively to the silk-and-satin quality of the farce.

The auxiliary attractions embrace Lanny Ross and Pearl Osgood in a Vitaphone two-reeler, "Yours Sincerely," based on the famous musical success, "Spring Is Here," in which they are supported by Nancy Welford, Janet Velie and Dudley Clements, and a new issue of the Paramount Sound News.

EARLE

"ELMER THE GREAT." First National picturization of a screen play by Tom Geraghty, based on the stage play by Ring Lardner and George M. Cohan, starring Joe E. Brown, with Patricia Ellis, Frank McHugh, Claire Dodd, Preston S. Foster and Emma Dunn. Directed by Mervyn LeRoy. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Going completely platitudinous, we want to state that old friends really are the best—when old friends are Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians.

No other orchestra has brought quite such a nicely balanced, generous and downright interesting program Washington's way this year—and you need lots of hands, with fingers, on which to count the visiting orchestras.

Jack Denny may have been more soothing, more musicianly; Cab Calloway more scorching, Ben Bernie more of a personality, Isham Jones—&c., but as Fred leads his lads through their talented and versatile paces we find they really have an act with a capital A.

They go from scat music, with a very enthusiastic young shouter, to a remarkably fine rendition of Ravel's throbbing Bolero, marred by a little too much brass in its climax. They sing softly and nicely "Just an Echo in the Valley," and they turn the spotlight over to Stuart Churchill, boy soprano, for a liquidly clear and rarely beautiful "Ave Maria." Tom Waring is back after a long absence; that bass-voiced drummer, "Poly" McClintock, is still around, praise be; their lighting effects continue unique and excellent; Babs is a darling; the two Lane sisters attractive and vivacious; Evelyn Nair is a slick rhythm dancer, and about the whole affair is the feeling of verve and good fellowship. Just to end the paragraph, what we mean is—they're a swell band and we're right glad they're back.

On the screen, Joe E. Brown, apparently preparing for the next Olympic decathalon, holds forth against another sport background, going from his recent marine element to the baseball diamond. Elmer is the world's greatest baseball player, home-run king par excellence, undisputed holder of the swelled-head title, and kingfish of hicks.

"Elmer the Great" still has the title it bore when it added to the Walter Huston fame on Broadway, but the title has, we imagine, a very different play to lug along.

Certainly Huston never trod the broad path of farce and grimace, which Joe E. walks as he makes a caricature of what should have been considerable of a character. No one else in the cast matters.

There are laughs, of course, a few hearty ones, a good many more because it seems time to laugh, or because Joe opens that mouth of his, which isn't so funny any more.

The actual baseball sequences—and we had had such hopes, what with Joe an ex-professional and a present day Kansas City Club owner—are few and far between.

Returning to the bill's better half, the stage show, Maxine Doyle introduces the Five Arleys in an opening balancing act and Al Abbott having, and giving, considerable fun in being the whole "Town Meeting."

A newsreel completes the bill for a week to remember as NVA's seven days out of 365.

PALACE

"THE WHITE SISTER." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Marion Crawford, dramatized by Walter Hackett and adapted to the screen by Donald Ogden Stewart, with musical score by Herbert Stothart, costarring Helen Hayes and Clark Gable, with Lewis S. Stone, Louise Closser Hale, May Robson and Edward Arnold. Directed by Victor Fleming.

Modernizing the familiar F. Marion Crawford story of the young Italian army officer who loved a nun, to the extent of establishing it in the period of the World War, elaborating upon the subject's pictorial possibilities by expanding the war, carnival and convent scenes beyond the scope of previous filmings of the romantic tale, and insuring its widest appeal by intrusting the pivotal characters to a cast of exceptional ability and balance, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer may well take pride in "The White Sister" as a fine accomplishment in the direction of serious artistry.

This, at best, is not a gay story. While it has its enlivened moments now and again, they are present only to point contrast with the poignancy and tragedy that mark the remainder of the action. Extensive sequences that are neither especially grave nor particularly gay are devoted to a meticulous visualization of the involved ceremonials that attend the taking of the veil.

Through all of this, sprightly, somber or grimly tragic, Helen Hayes, in the role of Angela Chiaromonte, and Clark Gable, the Lieut. Giovanni Severi, play with a deft command of mood and emotion that lifts the picture well above the level of a majority of its contemporaries.

The second week of the Palace engagement, like the first, finds the feature supplemented by a Charlie Chase comedy, a cartoon and the latest issue of the Metrotone News.

LOEW'S FOX

"PLEASURE CRUISE." Fox picturization of a play by Austen Allen, featuring Genevieve Tobin, Roland Young, Ralph Forbes and Minna Gombel. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

For a while it seemed as though "Pleasure Cruise" had forgotten what it had set out to do, the few reels portraying a marital yarn similar to the one Eddie Cantor aired last Sunday night. But when the humor of the tribulations of a working wife and a stay-at-home husband begins to pale, the S. S. Nebula, the pleasure liner, is brought in—and all goes merrily on, with only a slight change of motivation.

It's this way: Married in a financial emergency, Shirley Poole keeps her job while Andrew keeps the house and tries to finish the great American novel. As time passes, his jealousy increases, and it develops that a marriage holiday would not be amiss. So Shirley goes on the pleasure cruise, with Andrew sailing on the same boat, as the barber's assistant, to keep tabs of the wife. There is, of course, the male menace, as well as a miscellaneous assortment of passengers.

From then on what happens, while it can be anticipated in part, is too good to divulge—but rest assured that there is some of the best comedy pantomime released for a long while, aided and abetted by a group of stellar characterizations headed by those of Genevieve Tobin and Roland Young, with Ralph Forbes doing the "villain" and Uno O'Connor, Herbert Mundin, Minna Gombell, Theodore von Eltz, Frank Atkinson, Robert Grieg and Arthur Hoyt furnishing the support.

On the stage are featured an array of perennial acts, with George Givot—the "Greek Ambassador" of good will, investigating restaurant conditions—one of radio's latest comedians doing some personal-appearing.

Headlining is Benny Davis and His Gang of potential stars, including Floris Robbins, Stella Nielson, Bobby Bernard, Gene Garry and Lee Dixon, Jackie Green and Davie Craft, in a melange of dancing, singing and imitations.

Marty Collins and Harry Peterson, in a modification of their usual "You're a Wise Guy" act, and Gracie Schenck & Co., in a group of dances and instrumental numbers complete the stage line-up.

Phil Lampkin is booked for a fantasie of Rudolf Friml melodies (omitted from the reviewed performance), as an overture. A release of the Fox Movietone News completes the entertainment.

The Meanderer

Finds Cantaloupes and Green Corn in Local Markets — Temporary Strawberry Shortage.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extention 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Cantaloupes from Mexico arriving on the local market are choice in quality and low in price for the time of year. The dealer in a market on K street, who has sold vegetables into Washington homes for 25 years, asks only 20 cents each for the melons, a price which he says is much lower than the first cantaloupes usually bring.

Green corn is not accommodatingly low-priced in its first showings, for the merchant offering 20-cent canteloupes asks $1 a dozen for his corn. But the alligator pears at 25 cents and the quarts of strawberries at 25 cents, high among the food attractions of this K street dealer last week, are the same on this Saturday's shopping list.

Strawberries' picking and shipping in their chief production fields in the Carolinas have been halted by rains and unfavorably cool weather, a wholesale fruit dealer in the Southwest market told the Meanderer. Only a brief shortage will result, the dealer said. Next week will bring large quantities of the berries to the Capital, with lower prices than have been asked this year. The crop of berries is more plentiful than for many years, and prices should allow much preserving of the luscious fruit.

Seedless Persian limes—large green limes twice the size of commoner yellow limes—sell for 35 cents a dozen in the fruit house of the strawberry merchant just quoted.

Four long-shaped individual cakes filled with whipping cream, well-adapted for strawberry short cake foundations, are selling for 10 cents in a department store's housewares section.

Jumbo squabs, weighing more than a pound each, are selling for choice spring menus for not more than 75 cents each in a meat marketer's stand in a K street market. Squab broilers—which are small, plump tender chickens—sell for as little as 30 cents each in a poultry market in the Southwest. With the squabs or squab broilers the tender, sweet Carolina peas featured in a chain store, 3 pounds for 23 cents, are almost necessary.

Red raspberries, canned in rich syrup, may be used in making home-made frozen desserts, either frozen in the ice cream or as topping for plain sorts of cream. The raspberries sell two cans for 29 cents in a chain store today.

A pimiento cheese sandwich spread, made with the best of sharp cheese and pimientos, mixed freshly each day in a K street dairy products stand, sells for only 40 cents a pound. This stand sells Edam cheese in small quantities, if desired, rather than in the whole head. The Edam cheese is 50 cents a pound.

Mixed fruits for salads for spring dinners are but 21 cents a can in a chain store's special values for the week-end.

Daphne plants for the garden, which will bloom most of the summer, are ready in one flower market. The blooms are much like giant candy tuft. The plants are about 12-inch size with many branches and sell for $1. Apricot colored violas, which many shoppers suppose are pansies, have a longer blooming than pansies, and are finding many admirers.

Woman Sues for $25,000.

Leola Clever, of Arlington, Va., yesterday filed suit in the District Supreme Court against the A. B. & W. Rapid Transit Co. for $25,000 damages because of injuries she received March 18, 1932, when a bus in which she was riding struck an automobile operated by R. P. Nicholson, who also is named as a defendant. Attorney Harry Friedman filed the suit.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

her the proud owner of twenty different outfits—with the new jackets and things! (Says Dah-ray.)

WHO wants a jacket? Now you know perfectly well that you want a jacket! That you hafta have a jacket—or two or three or four or more. And that without jackets and jackets and scarfs and leis and boas and things you simply can't be chic this summer.

The thing to do about that is to get some summer dresses that you want—a very few, if your pocketbook demands it—and then to get a lot of jackets. Just a lot, I say—a flock of 'em, a family of 'em—yes, I insist. Because that is what I am doing, and I have already found it an excellent idea—the very best and smartest and most flattering idea I have ever found in the mode.

From morning to night you can wear several jackets, boleros, sleeve arrangements or whatnots. In the office, for instance, you can wear a plain and well made (of course) dark dress—summer and winter—because the dark cottons are so lovely, you know. Well, then, and you can wear this dark dress, be practical and cool—and wear a different jacket or geegaw—today's jackets are named so variously and strangely, you know—every day. A different color, too,—and who will know that you haven't a new outfit on? Not I, for one! And not the boss, nor the catty stenogs—you can bet.

Summer dresses are particularly lendable—as it were. One or two, neutral colors, and there you are with a change for every day or for every hour, if you prefer. With your various colored jackets, blouses, boleros, whatnots. Not that the whatnot doesn't often cost as much as the dress, but who cares? Together they make something new and chic, and one sort of discounts the value—if one is wise—and if the garments are good lines in themselves!

* * * *

I have a couple of darling ones that I made out of half a yard of colored suede. Then there are the spangled organdy ones I had made for my cruise, and the velvet ones that are all sleeves, and—oh, well, a whole family of darling jackets and boleros and whatnots! All yours for the making, and needing only a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, to find out how. Yours for more and cuter jackets—especially those you make yourself, and especially those we tell you how to make in this new leaflet.

* * * *

Hats with gardenias—oh, gardenias! The flower that never fails to charm, to thrill and to bemuse. Never out of style—this summer it is very much in evidence on miladi's hat. Evening hats, daytime hats, whatever hat you wish, and probably black or white, rather than any lighter color. And trimmed with a group of gardenias at the tip-top of the crown, the very top—or under the brim, nestling close to the cheek—or high in the back, close to her hair. And somehow I always associated gardenias with brunettes.

* * * *

The evening bag with the long silver bottle neck is being carried again. Remember them? The top flies open and then the joined meshes of the neck open large enough to admit the hand, and close into a long and slender tube when being carried. Some of these silver-bottle necked bags are in velvet, some in beaded fringes. So far, no beaded loops to tear one's patience—and beads.

One of the Paris couturieres offers organdy evening jackets with huge sleeves—just when we think the big sleeve is out! But, somehow, these jackets seem very special, and the sleeves are so delightful that one forgets that they aren't the newest of the new.

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

THERE is an old and well-known bit of doggerel about fleas having other fleas to bite them.

A certain Army medical officer made practical use of the principle which is the theme of this verse. He had some soldiers' quarters which were infested with bedbugs. Ordinary means of getting rid of them proved ineffective. He was in a country where there prevails several diseases transmissible by insects. The case against the bedbug as a disease spreader is a poor one. There is no evidence that it is an important agency in the spread of any disease and yet this pest is always under suspicion.

Its method of feeding, its foods, its habits generally qualify it so admirably for spreading communicable disease that one always feels like returning the Scotch verdict of "guilty although not proven."

This angry medical officer decided to try setting ants on the bedbugs. He found it worked. A colony of small, red ants was transferred to the infested quarters and there made at home. The ants were observed as they caught, killed and ate the bugs. A bedbug can hide away in inaccessible cracks, but small red ants can swarm into a crack that would scarcely accommodate a bedbug.

In order for the method to succeed certain conditions must be met. The ant nest must contain eggs and young ants as workers and rulers. The insects will abandon a transferred nest if there are no eggs and young to be protected. In climates where even egg laying is seasonal care must be taken not to remove nests containing no eggs and young.

Another requisite is that the premises must be kept free from crumbs of bread, sugar and other ant food. These insects will not attack and kill bedbugs if they have plenty of sugar waiting to be consumed. It is not necessary to pay any attention to water, either to provide it or to make it inaccessible. Ants appear to be able to get all the water they need from their food.

Temperature is to be considered. Ants do not come out of the cracks during cold weather. They will not come out in large numbers in cold weather, even though the air in the rooms be warm.

These facts indicate that the ant method of routing bedbugs has its limitations. It will not work in some places and at some times. But there are premises and occasions for which it seems to be well suited.

WHAT'S GOOD TO EAT

ARTICHOKES ARE SMART AS VEGETABLE OR SALAD

By ANN BARRETT

IF you are an artichoke fan (like Singer Rosa Ponselle, for instance) you already know the delight of artichokes cooked with a little olive oil and a touch of garlic. And served either hot, with Hollandaise, or cold, with vinaigrette sauce or mayonnaise.

Otherwise, you've got a novel eating adventure ahead of you! Because the artichoke is in a class by itself for flavor and the distinction it gives the plainest meal. And because the method of eating it is so entertaining—pluck, dip and nibble, I call it. Pluck off a leaf with the fingers, dip it in sauce (if it isn't already sauced), then nibble off the tender, luscious part of the leaf that was next the heart. And finally, eat the heart itself (with a fork), making this last as long as possible because it's the best part of all. Owing to this method of eating, and the aristocratic air of the artichoke, it is usually served as a course by itself, in solitary glory.

Shopping and Cooking Tips.

In buying artichokes, choose those that have fresh-looking stems and green (not brown) tips. Then cut off the stem close to the bud, pull off the coarsest outside leaves, cut off the leaves 1 inch from the top, and soak the artichoke 20 minutes or so in cold, salted water. The general rule for cooking is to put the artichokes into a little boiling water to which you have added (for each artichoke) a pinch of salt, 1 tablespoon olive oil and 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar. If you have leanings that way, drop in a section of garlic, too. Then cover the artichokes and cook till a leaf will pull out easily (30 to 45 minutes, depending on size and age). Before serving, let artichokes drain upside down for a minute.

Stuffed Artichoke Hearts.

For an extra-special occasion when you want some tid-bit to dress up the meat course, the last word in elegance would be stuffed artichoke hearts made as follows: Cook four artichokes as usual. Then pull all the leaves off the heart, and pull off the dry, inedible part called the choke. Scrape off the tender parts of the leaves and mix these with 6 tablespoons minced white-meat of chicken (cooked), 1 tablespoon butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Heap this mixture up on the artichoke hearts, sprinkle them with 2 tablespoons fine, dry bread crumbs, put them in a pan, and brown in the oven. Take it from me, your friends will give you grateful looks when they taste that!

Sauce Vinaigrette.

For sauce vinaigrette, which makes such a delicious dressing for cooked, chilled artichokes, mix (in order given) and chill the following ingredients: 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, few grains of pepper, 1½ tablespoons tarragon vinegar and 1½ tablespoons cider vinegar (or all cider vinegar), ½ cup olive oil, 1½ tablespoons sweet cucumber pickle (chopped), 1 tablespoon minced green pepper), 1 teaspoon minced parsley and 1½ teaspoons minced chives or onion. (Incidentally, this makes very good eating on any kind of green salad.)

A New Yorker At Large

By MARK BARRON.

New York—That "mind reading" stunt reported here the other day is, after all, merely a fake. The perpetrators have confessed all, and very willingly, too, as it proved a boomerang which caused them plenty of grief.

The idea was that someone thought of a certain card, then called a particular telephone number and asked the voice that answered for "Mr. Adams," "Mr. Brooks" or some similar name. Then the voice would immediately name the card of which you were thinking.

It was begun by one of New York's well-known physicians and a prank-playing pal. It was the physician who answered the call and named your card.

Hoax.

The name you asked for was the tip-off as to the card. The first letter of the name was the code of the number of your card, and the last letter was the code for the suit. For instance, if you were told to ask for "Mr. Adams," that meant that you had picked the ace of spades. If you asked for "Mr. Bach," that meant the two of hearts.

Very simple, but most everyone fell for it, including the gullible one, until the doctor in desperation confessed the whole plot to the newspapers in an effort to get people to stop calling him.

The gag spread about town like fire in a wheat field, and the harassed physician had to answer about 300 calls within the space of twelve hours. People got him out of bed in the middle of the night, called him from his bath—it was awful. And he couldn't have his telephone number changed because it was known to all his patients and he feared some of them might need him in an emergency and wouldn't know about a new number.

It afforded a hearty chuckle to the town for a few days—that is, to everyone except the doctor.

Fooled Again.

The loud-mouthed hawker was selling shoe strings on a Sixth avenue corner. "Five cents for four pair," he seemed to be calling. But, if you stopped to buy, you found out differently. "No, I said 5 cents for a pair, not four pair," the sidewalk salesman would correct you.

As a matter of fact, he does yell, "Five cents for four pair." Thus he confessed: "Makes a lot of people stop when they hear that, and then I just tell them they misunderstood. Very few of them refuse to buy after they find out they aren't getting the bargain they expected."

The favorite spots for these sidewalk hawkers are at the busiest corners. The only policemen on duty at such points are so busy with traffic they rarely get a chance to come over and chase them on.

Peggy Fears' plan to open her new show in London was halted by immigration troubles. Some of her actors are aliens and could not reenter this country once they had left it.

THE ROOT OF THE EVIL.

Washington once more welcomes the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald. He will be met by old friends and will make many new ones. His earnest desire to find means to improve world conditions is heartily reciprocated by all Americans, without regard to party. President Roosevelt begins his conversations with Mr. MacDonald on the solid bases of confidence, good will, and mutuality of purpose.

In announcing on April 5 that he would welcome a visit from Mr. MacDonald, President Roosevelt stated that he looked forward to an informal exchange of views regarding the general economic situation "and the problem of disarmament." Mr. MacDonald upon his arrival in New York stated that he hoped to have a frank exchange of views over a wide range of issues, "both economic and political."

The conversations between the spokesmen of these two great powers can not proceed far without realization that economic agreements of worldwide scope are dependent upon political understandings. Mr. Roosevelt's words, "and the problem of disarmament," have been neglected in public discussion of the questions to be considered, but they will thrust themselves into the conversations.

The nations are spending extravagant sums for armaments while groaning over economic hardships, including the burden of war debts. Mr. MacDonald has been wrestling with the disarmament problem, well knowing that unless it is solved there will be little prospect of worldwide agreement upon economic questions. The real malady of the world is political in nature, rather than economic. The nations are distrustful. They fear war. Japan, Germany, and Soviet Russia give them cause for alarm. Combinations of nations are suspected, having for their object the overturn of the system set up by the Treaty of Versailles. The dread of a collision involving many nations induces them all to arm, regardless of their economic stress. The cost of armaments destroys all hope of economic stability in many countries of Europe. They waste their ingenuity in devising tariffs, quotas, and financial schemes, thereby doing injury to themselves and their neighbors without going to the root of their ailment.

If President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald can find some practical plan for halting the outlay on armaments, and bring about its acceptance by the nations, the world's economic troubles will begin to solve themselves. Why should not all nations agree to an arms holiday? A concerted agreement to hold down arms budgets to the 1932 level would be better than nothing, and might result in an agreement for reductions all along the line. The nations would be relatively as strong as ever if they would all abandon proposed increases and confine their expenditures to items authorized by treaties.

Great Britain and the United States should take the lead in efforts to establish a policy that will put an end to the danger of war throughout Asia. Other European powers should cooperate to that end. Unless the nations work out a policy to be pursued by them all, they may be confronted with something much more dangerous and formidable than economic derangements. Hostilities in Asia are a threat to the whole world.

Peace in the Orient, accompanied by a standstill agreement as to armaments, would open the way for immediate adjustment of trade relations, financial stabilization, &c. But unless the dangers and fears of war can be removed it is not likely that the nations will have a sufficient sense of security and confidence to warrant them in making mutual concessions for the sake of worldwide stability and commerce. They dare not make any concessions while there is hanging over them the fear that they may be soon fighting for existence.

WHITHER THE DOLLAR?

Vigorous opposition to President Roosevelt's inflation program has developed in the Senate. Before this measure is enacted into law it will be fully discussed. Congress will not accept it blindly. It is not to be supposed that the Republicans in the Senate will be able to command sufficient votes to defeat the measure. A large Democratic majority will be swelled by the Republican insurgents when the final test comes. The House, too, may be expected to remain obedient to the President's wishes.

Most attention is centered, therefore, on what action will be taken under this measure when it is once on the statute books. It is said in some circles that this is merely a strategical move on the part of the President to defeat the wild inflationary schemes talked of in Congress. When the President has power over the dollar in his own hands, it is said, he will exercise that authority to save the country from the disastrous effects of depreciated currency.

If this is the intention of the President, the method of attaining it is very strange. The drift toward inflation in Congress could have been halted without legislation. The President wields tremendous power, and Congress is ready to do his bidding on any subject relating to economic recovery. It is not to be supposed that the President would request such an unprecedented grant of power if he did not intend to use it.

Moreover, the President realizes that while this vast power remains in his hands business will not go forward, because of the uncertainty of the future, unless the power is used. Every indication points to the conclusion that the President is seeking this power as a means of driving business and industry into activity again. Having taken the country off the gold standard, he will be forced to use a powerful stimulant to overcome the hesitancy of business to move while monetary values are unstable.

Another factor comes into consideration. The Treasury has a deficit of $1,503,846,000, and the deficit continues to grow. The administration plans on making $500,000,000 available to the States for relief purposes and on spending a large sum for public works. Where can the money for these projects be obtained? Would the Government dare to risk a bond issue or to offer short-term obligations when Federal bonds are sinking and the dollar has no fixed value? It does not seem probable. The administration may have to issue greenbacks to pay its expenses.

It is inconceivable that President Roosevelt would have abandoned the gold standard if he had not intended to use inflation as a means of forcing commodity prices up within the United States. This country was not forced off gold. On the day when the embargo was laid down the Federal Reserve system had $3,365,595,000 in gold. With one exception, this is the highest peak ever reached by the reserve banks' gold holdings. There was no reason for abandonment of the gold standard, except that the administration had determined upon a program of inflation.

To what extent that program will go remains to be seen. Of course, President Roosevelt intends to keep inflation under control. No country ever embarked upon inflation without intending to manage it scientifically. Yet disaster has been the customary end of such experiments. When once the dollar is ripped from its moorings, no one can tell when it may again be fastened to gold or at what value. Economic forces stronger than the human will usually prevail. It appears that the best hope for a restabilized dollar now lies in the international negotiations that will take place in Washington and at the world economic conference.

DEPRECIATED CURRENCY.

Just after Chairman O'Brien, of the Tariff Commission, had committed himself to the argument that the effects of depreciated currency upon American trade are insignificant the United States went off the gold standard. One reason for this action is to put the United States in a better position to protect itself against the products of depreciated currency abroad.

The Commerce Department does not agree with Mr. O'Brien. Its latest report on the subject says that "depreciated world currencies tend to increase our imports and to decrease our exports as well as to disturb proper price relationships."

Apparently Mr. O'Brien holds to the theory that prices rise when any country debases its currency, thus offsetting any advantages that might be gained by that country in selling to gold standard nations. But that theory is not now in operation for several reasons. "In no instance," says the Department of Commerce, "has the increase in foreign wholesale prices (in terms of foreign currency) been sufficient to offset the effects of depreciation in exchange, even making allowances for the decline in United States prices."

In terms of American money wholesale prices in Japan declined more than 46 per cent between the time that country left the gold standard and last November. During the same time wholesale prices in the United States fell 9 per cent. Can it be reasonably contended that such a disparity gave Japan no advantage in the American market? The advantage which Japan has gained is real and tangible, even though its benefits to Japan and its damage to American producers have not been fully realized at the Tariff Commission.

In quantity the total American imports fell 20 per cent in 1932. No quantity figures are available for individual countries; in value, however, American imports from Japan fell 25 per cent. But the yen was worth, on the average, 42.5 per cent less than it was in 1931. In other words, the decline in the value of imports from Japan was more than absorbed in the fall of the yen. These facts suggest an actual increase in the quantity of goods coming from Japan, while the quantity of goods from all countries fell 20 per cent.

It is not to be expected that foreigners shipping cheap merchandise into the United States could capture the whole market in a short time. "A lag of several months," says the Department of Commerce, "must occur between the time a foreign currency begins to depreciate and the time when imports of individual commodities begin to increase." Considerable time is required to set up selling organizations. Resistance from American producers leads to lower domestic prices until the American producers are finally forced to quit. Many industries are now experiencing this struggle. "Statistics for 1932," says the Department of Commerce, "should therefore be taken, not as a measure of effect, but merely as an indication of the direction in which these forces are working. Until the costs of production and prices of some of our commodities are further reduced or some tariff adjustments made, imports should tend to supply an increasing proportion of our domestic needs."

It is absurd to ignore the obvious advantages that foreign nations have acquired in this present critical situation by debasing their currencies. No one contends that such advantages will be permanent, but while they last they are a blighting influence upon every attempt that is made to restore American industry to normal activity. When the chairman of the Tariff Commission closes his eyes to facts and treats the whole matter in accordance with obsolete theory, he only adds to the public confusion and distress.

MUSSOLINI ON DEBTS.

At the opening session of the interparliamentary commercial conference in Rome Premier Mussolini delivered an address in which he expressed his views on economic questions, giving particular attention to payment of international debts, laying stress upon the necessity of liquidation being made through the channels of trade. The speech was credited with added importance because it was delivered in the presence of Foreign Minister Guido Jung, who is to depart in a few days for Washington as Italy's representative at the economic conversations here.

Signor Mussolini found a good sign "in the recognition that is being reinforced everywhere that it is not possible to pay international debts merely with transfers of money, but that the debts themselves must be paid above all with the exchange of goods or services." The premier declared the question one that was very delicate and complex because it embraced so many problems, both economic and financial, affecting both debtor and creditor countries.

The conference was warned by Il Duce that a solution of the economic problems it was called to discuss is conditioned on reaching a better political atmosphere toward which statesmen in all parts of the world are working, and a better comprehension of the difficulties of others by the men who direct the economic destinies of the various nations.

There was a significant hint regarding the continental situation, possibly inspired by the presence in the conference of Capt. Goering of Germany, when the premier said, referring to the economic reconstruction of central and eastern European nations, that Italy "is inspired by the principle that, above all, it is necessary to provide adequate liquidation of the past on the financial terrain, monetary rehabilitation and assistance in the economic-agrarian field."

Gold holdings of the United States are near the highest peak in history. But not one cent of it is available to any one. The Treasury has become the world's champion gold hoarder.

Since President Roosevelt used the gridiron as an illustration for his financial tactics, quite a number of folks have been playing football with the dollar.

CONGRESS LOOKS AT COFFEE

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Congress, casting about for any means of revenue that will help to balance the budget, is beginning to sip its coffee speculatively. Why not a tax on coffee?

The question is occurring more and more to the minds of the gentlemen who are charged with the duty of raising the taxes to keep the Government functioning. This is not surprising in view of the fact that coffee is a universal drink in the United States. Theoretically, a high tariff on coffee would yield considerable revenue.

But only theoretically. There are numerous reasons, both practical and sentimental, why coffee should not be subjected to import duties. In the first place, coffee is no longer considered to be a luxury in the United States, but a necessity. This is particularly true of the poorer classes, whose purchasing powers have been grievously curtailed. A tax sufficiently high to yield substantial revenue would place coffee beyond the reach of large numbers of persons, and would, in addition to working a hardship on them, defeat its purpose by resulting in a restricted sale of the beverage.

Moreover, a tax on coffee would instigate reprisals on the part of coffee-growing countries of South America and thus seriously interfere with the recovery of our export trade to Latin America. There is also the problem of collecting the tax. The coffee distributors, unable for the most part to pass the tax along, would be forced to absorb it, with a consequent scaling down of other expenditures and a resultant slowing of recovery.

There are always the sentimental reasons. The Boston Tea Party began a tradition of tax-free beverages of the mild sort in the United States. The coffee drinkers of the Nation prefer to adhere to that tradition.

Look Out!

POST HASTE.

It may be too much to expect the survival of old-fashioned stable currency in this age of garages and hangars.

"State Department denies monetary coup was aimed at international bargaining power." If not, it was a good snap shot in the dark.

Legislators begin to wonder, if piecemeal grants sum up to it, why not vote blanket authority and go home to the spring planting?

If old Agricultural Bill ever finishes the Senate course it will be with the added degree of graduate nurse of finance.

If the walking had been better between the Ile de France and Paris the French delegates would have started right home when they heard the news.

As a close observer, one noted Scotch visitor will not overlook the fact that the new exchange rates will leave about a 10 per cent profit in his expense account.

There is some apprehension that entrants in the conversational marathon may protest that the rules have been changed after the game started.

A lucid explanation seems to be that the greenback is to be an ax in the hands of a trusty sailor for use in case the old open-market operations don't slip the hawser and let the new ship, Inflation, rise.

"Psychological" stock buying added four billions to paper values in two days. Isn't inflation wonderful?

Anyhow, it was nice of Prof. Moley to let the grand old man of inflation, Senator Thomas, introduce his triple-ply money bill.

Copper is impudently going up as well as silver. Does it think we are going to need so many more split nickels?

Skyrocketing prices don't stick, so look out for the stick.

The money changers will have to elect a new honorary president; none of them ever thought of changing it three ways at once.

With the Navy's permission we will change the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" to "Gold Anchors Aweigh."

PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST.

SOMETHING TO DO.

Not long ago I knew a man whose path was smooth and fair.
He'd all he wished of money and he'd not a single care.
But he used to come to see me and he'd mutter many a night:
"I'm tired of being idle and I'd like a foe to fight.

"I'm tired of golf and yachting and
I'm sick of traveling, too.
I think I could be happy if I had a job to do.
I'd like to rise o' mornings with some doubts to solve or dread.
You may think retirement's pleasant,
but I'd rather work instead.

"For the fun is the striving and the thrill is in the chase
And it keeps man healthy-minded if he has some odds to face.
It is good to start a business and to think and plan for it;
It is fine to be successful, but it's deadly when you quit!"

Well, we're back once more in harness and we've doubts and fears to face.
There are problems now a-plenty, but it's healthy for the race.
Now we're battling for existence and we're toiling in the sun
And as long as we'll keep busy boredom can not spoil our fun.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.
By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY Dear Louise: It becomes necessary, for the good of your soul, to tell you a fable concerning a man who violated Rule No. 6.

Rule No. 6, in case you do not know, reads as follows: "Don't kid yourself."

And this is the fable, told in few words:

Once upon a time there was a witless man who yearned for a million dollars. He got up early to begin yearning and kept at it until nightfall. Yet he got no results.

At frequent intervals during the day his kind-hearted neighbors called to see him and each in turn offered a gold coin, saying: "Here is a ten you may have, old man," or "Here is a twenty if you'll accept it."

But the man shook his head and sighed in his beard and moaned: "If only I had a million dollars."

In the course of years he was offered much more than a million dollars, but the individual offerings were small and unimpressive and never seemed worth accepting. So the man died in poverty, still foolishly longing for the million that he had refused to accept because it wasn't in one lump.

Of course you don't believe that. You think nobody could be so foolish. But the world is full of people like that, and you, my dear, are one of their company.

How many, many times I have heard you say: "I didn't have time." And how often, when your conscience reminds you of some neglected duty, you fool yourself by answering: "I don't have time for it."

That, I believe, is the most common and least truthful alibi in current use.

Like the man who yearned for a million, you think you have no time because it isn't offered to you in a lump.

If all of the spare minutes you have in a week were placed before you at once, they would fill so long a space that the very thought of them would bore you. And you would long for some new way to kill that much time.

But because the spare minutes appear in little groups of five or ten or twenty, you think they aren't worth using. You'll have your time in big bunches or you won't use it at all.

Well, my dear, pie is pie, whether it comes in the form of a circle or cut in wedges. It isn't true that you have no pie because you haven't a whole one.

Don't kid yourself about it. Life is time and time is like money. Spending a little at a time soon wrecks a $20 bill. Love, DAD.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Old Age Pensions.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Whether Missouri shall or shall not have an old-age pension system, as authorized by the great majority of the voters in the November election, now rests entirely with the State Senate. The measure, after overwhelming passage by the House, now has been reported to the Senate by the Pensions Committee with recommendation for passage. If the Senate has any respect for the people's mandate, it will put down the temptation to evade an expression on the subject, but will bring the matter to a vote and pass the bill. Surely at least eighteen senators, the number required, will rally to the cause of safeguarding the State's aged dependent persons.

Paternalism Gone Mad.

Los Angeles Times.

Adoption in the Senate of the Simpson-Norris amendment to the farm bill, empowering the Secretary of Agriculture to guarantee farmers their cost of productions plus a "reasonable profit," is so absurdly impossible as to be paternalism gone mad. In such a highly competitive business as agriculture, no matter how high the price might go there would always be some farmers who did not make anything and no reasonable theory of price boosting would ever attempt to go further than to assure to the majority of farmers a fair price on an average crop or one reasonably equal to the consumptive needs.

Bimetallism.

Chicago News.

Russian dentists are filling patients' teeth with steel, while Soviet rulers approve of filling foes' systems with lead.

Howe It's Done.

Fredericksburg (Va.) Free Lance-Star.

Out of the picture, yet always at Roosevelt's elbow, is a wise little man by the name of Col. Lewis Howe. Many have wondered how it is that Roosevelt sidesteps all political pitfalls and proceeds with such swift, uncanny accuracy. We don't know, but we think it is because he knows Howe.

"Frank"-ness Ended.

Detroit News.

Such has Senator Huey Long's capacity for antics been proven that President Roosevelt might be anathema to him today and "Frank" again tomorrow. For the present, Louisiana's performing senator defines himself as the first senatorial "insurgent" under the New Deal. The incompatibility avowed by him on the floor of the Senate certainly appears to divorce him from that former brotherly "Frank"-ness.

One watches Huey Long and finds him a demonstration of the incredible miracles of which politics at its worst is capable.

Political Beer Control.

Topeka Capital.

Massachusets just got in under the wire for beer, and New York was a little behind. Both Gov. Lehman and Gov. Ely won their fight, at least nominally, with Legislatures that opposed State-wide beer regulation and insisted on local control. But Gov. Ely was forced to accept a compromise by which State control keeps the word of promise to the ear but breaks it to the hope. There is a State commission as the governor demanded and without which he threatened a veto, but its powers are emasculated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Democrat Questions Wisdom of Revalorizing the Dollar—Cites Platform Pledge for Sound Money.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just at a time when the people of this country were beginning to congratulate themselves and the House membership over the elevation in that body of Mr. Rainey as Speaker on the belief that his sound judgment gained by long experience as a legislator would be a great factor in holding that body to the enactment of sound measures, they are now suddenly shocked at his bold announcement that he will join the inflationist schemers. Had any such inflation schemes as those now proposed by Senators Wheeler and Long been made an issue in the last campaign, history no doubt would have repeated itself and a result similar to that in 1896 would have been experienced.

Up to within three weeks of the election in 1896 the betting was from 2 to 5 to 1 that Mr. Bryan would be elected. But all of a sudden the picture completely changed when the people really began to think and realized what the ory of 16 to 1 meant. There is no reason to believe that a similar result would not have materialized in the 1932 election had the inflation ideas now being brought out on the Hill been advanced in that campaign. Instead of any such schemes the present President specifically declared in favor of sound money.

While it is not surprising at a time like this to hear all kinds of quack remedies suggested as cure-alls for the depression, the results of the application of tinkering with the dollar valuation by those countries that have tried it should be a sufficient warning to us to steer clear of it.

A DEMOCRAT.

Virginia Mountaineer Makes a Few Pungent Observations on Employment and Relief.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have a great many unemployed up in our mountain districts who are skilled in woodcraft; men who could and would, if given a chance, clean and reforest our mountains. These same men are maintaining their families on very little and will be called upon to put out any fires that these boys from the cities may start through ignorance of the woods.

We have had poor crops, due to drought, and now, when there is a little work, the Government takes it away from us and gives it to the city boys. In the ensuing year work will pick up again in the city and then these same boys will return there, getting employment again.

These boys have been taken care of by various welfare boards, upon money borrowed from our Government, while we mountaineers have received no aid and have been helping each other. Our merchants are loaded with debts and our chances to survive are few indeed. Don't you believe those stories about the Red Cross helping our mountain folk; it does very little. But I recall way back in 1918, while in France, I bought a package of tobacco in a Red Cross canteen for 5 francs, about a dollar, and on opening it, I found a card with the inclosed inscription: "Presented by the Actors Equity Association of New York City."

Insurance Policyholder Balks at the Swollen Salaries to Officers and Demands New Deal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article by A Subscriber in this column a few days ago, I am sure, struck a responsive chord in the thoughts of many policyholders, especially at this time, when they are finding it increasingly difficult to meet their premiums, and in many cases are forced to allow them to lapse.

The spectacle presented in the item published in The Post a short time ago, in which it was stated that the executives of the large insurance companies were receiving (but, of course, not earning), such enormous salaries as $125,000 a year, is a revolting one, and the conviction is being forced upon the minds of many people that such conditions must not be allowed to continue. Furthermore, the belief is becoming prevalent among conservative people that the Government should take some action through taxation, by which a large part of such salaries may be distributed among the policyholders. As life insurance is at least a quasipublic function it certainly should come under Government scrutiny and the policyholders afforded a new deal.

ANOTHER SUBSCRIBER.

Old Subscriber Hopes Beer Law Will Prevent Repeal and Return of Whisky.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a constant subscriber to The Post from its first issue, I hope you will permit me to say a word in regard to the beverage question. My idea is that, with the arrangements for the sale of beer working all right, it would be good policy not to repeal the eighteenth amendment. This in the interest of true temperance. There may be some stomachs which will not tolerate beer, as is the case with many other foods and drinks. But as a national drink it would satisfy any reasonable alcoholic thirst and, partaken of properly, it is a good thing for nervous people.

Beer is only a minor intoxicant. Repeal the eighteenth amendment and, unless drinking habits have been very much changed under prohibition, major intoxicants such as whisky, gin and rum would too often be consumed to excess. That is why I hope that beer will continue to be our only legalized alcoholic drink. With the return of hard liquor, conditions would become too scary.

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF April 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:50 a. m. to 10:10 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 a. m. to 7:45 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Influences operating on this April 22 will tend to make for inactivity and dullness. You will probably feel lackadaisical and little will be accomplished either in business or in a social way. Your relations with those of the opposite sex will not necessarily be harmonious.

The child born on this April 22 will find difficulty in taking care of himself in his childhood years. The boys may be the type who will remain "tied to their mother's apron strings" and the girls, unless care is taken, will be the squeamish and unnatural type.

If April 22 is your birthday, you are in all probability a person very frank in nature. You abhor trickery, fraud and deceit, and once you have been misled by another, you have no use whatsoever for that person. You know few idle moments, primarily because you have a great variety of interests in life that keep you always on the go; in the second place, you probably have a good deal of nervous energy that you just must work off one way or another. You are not as patient as you might be in your relations with others, but when it comes to the carrying out of some minute and detailed task that requires much time for its accomplishment, you exhibit no end of patience and perserverance.

If April 22 is the date of your birth, you are quite possibly a person who is physically attractive as well as one possessed of what is often called a "beautiful character." Without seeming to seek the material things of life, you seem to have an abundant supply of them; it is your nature to give, rather than to receive. In your associations with those of the opposite sex, you are inclined to be a little hesitant, at times, almost timid. You marry anywhere along in life from seven to seventy and when you choose your mate, it will be no sudden love springing forth, but rather, a reasoned and studied choice. The chances are in your favor for great married happiness.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

A 3-YEAR-OLD girl out walking with her mother said suddenly, "I want a little sister, buy me a little sister, mother."

Many a modern parent might have thought that the moment had arrived to give her child some first simple enlightenment as to where babies come from.

But this mother, with rare intuition, did nothing of the sort. Instead she took the child to the nearest toy shop and let her choose for herself a "baby sister"—at the doll counter.

The child walked home blissfully, the "baby sister" hugged in her arms. Her request had been met in exactly the spirit in which it had been made—the spirit of make-believe of her own child world.

It is by no means easy to know how to deal with such little situations. The child under 4 frequently evidences an interest as to his own origin, referring to it directly or indirectly, but this does not mean that he is ready to assimilate even quite simple true explanations.

Indeed, unless they are given with a fine sense of his emotional need of the moment, they may only distress and confuse him. Often he rejects them altogether in favor of some private theory of his own, or of the stork myth.

The wisest course is always to try to meet the child on his own level. Where his own interest is still largely in the realm of phantasy he should be met in kind.

As long as anything like a rebuff is avoided, and as long as he is never told an untruth, the pathway of confidence is left open between mother and child and he will continue to come to her when he is able to formulate definite questions and wants realistic answers.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT SUIT.

IN making a choice of game contracts, the player is frequently called upon to consider from which seat the lead will come. Generally, a four-bid in a major should be preferred to a five-bid in a minor, but in the following hand the North player would have found his contract defeated if he had observed this principle.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 10 8 7 ♡ K Q 8 ◇ 3 2 ♣ 9 8 6 3
♠ J 5 2 ♡ J 10 9 5 ◇ A J 8 7 5 ♣ 4	N W E S	♠ 9 4 ♡ 7 6 4 3 2 ◇ Q 9 6 4 ♣ A 2
	♠ K Q 6 3 ♡ A ◇ K 10 ♣ K Q J 10 7 5

The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣	Pass	1♠ (1)
Pass	3♣ (2)	Pass	4♣ (3)
Pass	4♠ (4)	Pass	5♣ (5)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The best bid, even though the suit is slightly shaded. The hand is too strong for a one-notrump or two-club bid, and too weak for a two-notrump or three-club bid.

2—Practically Forcing. It does not seem that the bidding will die at three clubs.

3—Showing club support and some slight additional values. Three notrump would be a "sign-off."

4—This bid at this point conveys the information that the hand was really strong enough to bid four spades immediately over one spade.

5—A brilliant bid. It is apparent to North that his partner holds a tremendous hand, with probably something in diamonds. If the diamond holding is the King and one, it can be led through immediately and the four-spade contract considerably endangered. Hence the return to the minor suit contract, as even eleven tricks must be safe in view of South's strong bidding.

The play was comparatively simple. The heart Knave was opened and won by Declarer with the Ace. The Dummy was then entered with the Ace of spades and two diamonds discarded on the King-Queen of hearts. Declarer then lost 1 club trick and fulfilled his contract with an overtrick. Played at spades, East's Opening lead would have been a diamond, whereupon West would have cashed 2 diamond tricks immediately. A club would have been returned, the Ace taken and a ruff obtained for the fourth and setting trick.

The twelve bodies, after lying in state overnight in the municipal palace, were to be reinterred with ceremony in the crypts of a new memorial erected at the intersection of main streets. The memorial honors several hundred Mexicans who died in the fighting.

Round Table Talks Over Tax Conflicts

New Congress in January May Attempt to End Duplication.

(Associated Press.)

A possibility that the regular session of the Seventy-third Congress beginning next January, will see enactment of legislation to end conflicting taxation by the Federal Government and the States arose yesterday out of a round table conference between an interstate commission and congressional representatives.

The Interstate Commission on Taxation, created from the membership of the American Legislators Association, in its conference with four members of congressional taxation committees, presented a six-point plan as the basis for State-Federal negotiations looking to the wiping out of double taxation.

Outstanding among the six proposals the legislators made to Congress was the suggestion that the Federal Government cease its tax on gasoline and that the States enact no further taxes on tobacco, already under levy by the Federal Government.

MATHER MEMORIAL ISLAND IS FAVORED

Park and Planning Board Definitely Puts Project on Program.

Plans for the purchase of an island in the Potomac River near Great Falls to be used as a memorial to the late Stephen T. Mather, famous director of the National Park Service, were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Members of the commission expressed approval of the idea. The plan is still in a formative stage and no definite action has been taken. Just how far the commission will be able to go with the memorial island to the man who instituted the National Park Service is not known, as the lack of funds may delay it for some time. However, it is on the commission's program and will eventually receive more definite consideration.

Members of the commission also talked over the report on river pollution made recently by the Public Health Service as it applies to local waters.

They also discussed ways and means to coordinate the program of the Federal Employment Stabilization Board with other building programs so that overlap might be avoided and all possible economies effected.

Routine matters, including the discussion of current land transfer problems, were taken up later in the afternoon. The commission will not meet today.

Early Announcement as to Method of Financing Is Expected.

With the Government facing a deficit of $2,000,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year and already down $1,500,000,000, it was thought probable that some indication of what policy would be adopted would be shown when the certificates were paid off. When $660,000,000 came due March 15 it was met with an issue of short-term notes.

Christian Science Churches

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Matthew xxiv:13: "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." (I Corinthians xv:58).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Universal salvation rests on progression and probation, and is unattainable without them. Heaven is not a locality, but a divine state of Mind in which all the manifestations of Mind are harmonious and immortal, because sin is not there and man is found having no righteousness of his own, but in possession of the 'mind of the Lord,' as the Scriptures say." (Page 291).

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE remarks of Premier Ramsay MacDonald addressed to the members of the National Press Club and their guests will be heard in every corner of the United States. The broadcast, which will be transmitted locally by Stations WMAL and WJSV, will begin at 2 o'clock.

Secretary of State Hull will introduce Mr. MacDonald. Peter Brandt, president of the National Press Club, will preside.

Prime Minister MacDonald will deliver one other address while in the United States. He will speak next Wednesday evening from New York.

The annual luncheon of the Catholic Charities Drive will be broadcast by Station WJSV at 1:30 o'clock. Alfred E. Smith will be the principal speaker.

ANOTHER group of speakers to be presented on the air today will be picked up from the fourth annual conference on militant pacifism (WMAL, 3 p. m.). The addresses will deal with the subject, "How Can We End War?" Among the speakers are Dr. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church, New York; Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, New York; John Nevin Sayre, of the Fellowship of Reconciliation; Devere Allen, editor of World Tomorrow, and Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, assistant rabbi of the Free Synagogue.

Continuing their performance of the symphonic works of Finland's greatest modern composer, Jan Sibelius, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Serge Koussevitsky conducting, will play the Symphony No. 7 during the concert to be broadcast over WMAL at 8:15 o'clock tonight. The program will open with the "Rebus" ballet by the 19-year-old Russian composer, Igor Markevitch. Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 5 in E minor will be played in conclusion.

Ruth Etting is vacationing at present underneath the Cuban moon, en route to join the colony of radio celebrities in California. After singing over a coast-to-coast network for fourteen months, Ruth decided to have a look at both coasts via the Panama Canal.

MISS FRANCES PERKINS, United States Secretary of Labor, will talk about "Financial Independence" over WJSV at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Beginning tonight, the adventures of K-7, international secret service agent during the World War, will be heard on Saturday evenings, instead of on Mondays, as heretofore (WRC, 9:30 p. m.). Tonight's story will reveal the undercover work resulting in the Italian retreat to the Piave, an Austrian coup which nearly won the war for the Central Powers.

An hour's program will be staged in the New York studios this afternoon (WRC, 4 o'clock), offering a variety of entertainment. The Debunk Brothers, Hi-bunk and Lo-bunk, who give the highlights and lowdown of the news, will set the pace in this week-end revue. They have some nonprofessional advice on golf, taxes and house-cleaning. In reality they are Alan Kent and Clyde Kittel, two fugitives from the announcers' gang.

Mrs. Jimmie Durante, wife of the comedian, will make her debut as a soprano soloist. Ben Grauer and Sidney Ten Eyck, who share the responsibilities as masters of ceremonies, will introduce Wee Willie Robyn, tenor; the Three Keys, Jock White, Scotch comedian; Lucile Peterson, soprano; Joe Biviano, accordionist, and many others.

THE Joint Commission on Emergency Education, now waging a Nation-wide fight for the defense of the American public school system, will carry its campaign to the air with a series of seventeen talks over N. B. C. networks. Lawyers, diplomats, economists, educators, Cabinet members and other national leaders will join in the radio campaign.

Bainbridge Colby, New York lawyer and former Secretary of State, will open the series with a discussion of "Education for All the People" (WMAL, 8 o'clock) tonight.

It was not without trepidation that the producers of "The Magic Voice" arranged to have their heroine, June, played by Elsie Hitz, broadcast from her home on Long Island during her month-long siege in quarantine there, for that convalescent young lady has to act as director and production man for herself while her fellow-actors carry on their parts in the studios, and other than doctor or nurse the nearest person to her during the broadcasts is the control engineer, whose apparatus is set up several rooms away.

However, radio-wise Elsie has overcome all obstacles and the broadcasts are flowing as smoothly as if she were in the studio with the others. But several troubles had to be overcome during the first rehearsal. Such as, for instance, her telephone, which started ringing wildly into the microphone during a romantic love scene, and the fire engines which clanged and whistled outside her open window. Now Elsie takes the telephone off the hook before each broadcast, her nurse has draped heavy padding over the windows, and no uncalled-for sound effects intrude on the broadcasts.

THE New York University Glee Club, recent winner of the National Intercollegiate Glee Club contest, and the Wilberforce University Double Quartet, one of the leading negro octets in the country, will be heard in concerts over the networks today.

The former, directed by Alfred Greenfield, will sing a group of selections, including classical works, spirituals, alma mater songs, and a comedy number over WMAL at 4:30 o'clock. The latter will be heard over WRC at 3:30 o'clock.

A special feature of Columbia's dance programs tonight will be a broadcast from the spring prom of the Lawrenceville Preparatory School, at Lawrenceville, N. J. The music will be supplied by Glen Gray and his Casa Loma Orchestra.

A gallon jug, a washboard and a skillet are the last things one would expect to find around the broadcasting studios. But in the case of the Southern Singers, heard four nights each week over N. B. C. networks, the kitchen utensils are all important.

The Southern Singers are radio entertainers whose prototype dates back to pre-Civil War days, when Negro slaves discovered the rhythmic possibilities of such a quaint ensemble.

And, believe it or not, the Southern Singers are a male quartet and still not a male quartet. They qualify for such in that they use male quartet arrangements, but fail to measure up to the standard in that one member is a woman.

Annie Laurie Ward, who describes her voice as "alto," carries the tenor when the four Southern Singers harmonize. The other three members of the quartet are Owen, James and Robert Ward.

YOU may not know that Welcome Lewis was born in Hollywood. . . . Miss Lewis is 5 feet tall; weighs 100 pounds. . . . She is the daughter of Katherine and Julian J. Lewis, professional dancers. . . . Her first public appearance was at the age of 12 in Grauman's Million Dollar Theater in Los Angeles. . . . She had her first radio audition with N. B. C. in 1929. . . . Before Miss Lewis came to radio she starred in vaudeville, where she was known as "The Vest Pocket Edition of Nora Bayes."

Eckington Players Open Recital Series Tonight

The Eckington Players, organized by Mrs. D. E. Middleton, will present a recital tonight at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Langley Junior High School. Included in the cast of tonight's play are Mabel Harrison, Ann Ryan, Frances Waltmeyer, Ruth O'Neal, C. Maria Thompson, William Davis, Vernon Lyden, George Miller, Harry Weatherby and Mark Edson.

Miss Mary Apple Will Sing.

Music of Popping Corks Again Heard Shipment of 200 Cases of Sparkling Burgundy Speedily Sold.

A sweet symphony of by-gone days was heard again in Washington yesterday—the symphony of popping corks from iced bottles of sparkling Burgundy. The young blades patronizing Washington's smart hotels and restaurants were fascinated with their new find, and the older set could hardly believe their ears.

And the result is that R. C. Winchester, of 512 Rittenhouse street northwest, representative of an old established firm in Egg Harbor City, N. J., is unable to supply the demand for the exhilarating liquid.

The first shipment of 200 cases was sold almost immediately upon arrival, and 150 additional cases are now in transit. The company, with orders for more than 1,000,000 cases on hand, is limiting shipments to 25 cases each.

Stocks Defeated in Battle Waged With Profit-Takers

Rally in Rails Trims Loss to 3 Points on Sale of 5,215,970 Shares.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Financial markets changed places today; that is, the dollar and high-grade bonds rallied while stocks and commodities declined.

This was perhaps a natural development since all had been moving rapidly in their recently chosen directions and some pause for a check-up seemed inevitable. Considering the sensational appreciation in immediately preceding markets, stocks held up well, yielding 1 to 5 points in steels, coppers, silvers, utilities, foods, farm implements and other beneficiaries of the Wednesday-Thursday boom. Rails, however, returned a balance of net gain after a violent upswing at the opening.

Profit-taking was heavy among equities and leading staples.

The stock turnover, at 5,215,970 shares, was about two million under Thursday's and the ticker tape managed to keep even most of the day, though it did fall behind while rails were having their early fling. Strength of carriers may have reflected brokers' opinion that they had been lagging, New York Central, up 4 points on an initial transfer of 25,000 shares, finished nearly 2 points higher; Delaware & Hudson was also firm to the close, but in general advances were cut to fractions.

Thursday's late flurry by utilities encouraged brisk realizing in that group. Consolidated Gas weakened conspicuously, losing more than 5 points net. Dividend action on the shares is due soon and with earnings lower Wall Street has been inclined to anticipate a cut in the $1 quarterly payment. American Telephone dropped 3, while North American, Peoples Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, International Telephone and United Corporation were among other losers.

U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, United Fruit and Bethlehem preferred yielded 3 to 5, but U. S. Steel, National Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Kennecott, Du Pont, Case and Standard Oil of New Jersey held their declines to a point or two.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for April 19 were $78,406,746.09; expenditures, $97,379,584.61; balance, $367,229,481.06. Customs duties for nineteen days of April were $10,883,811.96.

BONDS CLIMB AGAIN IN LIVELY MARKETS

Four-Tenths Gain Recorded as Sales Decline to $19,171,000.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The bond market resumed its climb today at a lively pace and high grade, as well as secondary issues, participated in recoveries that ranged from 1 to 5 or more points.

Sales totaled $19,171,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was up four-tenths of a point.

The majority of Federal maturities, reflecting reports of banking purchases, registered gains of 1-32 to 18-32 of a point with the heaviest turnover in Liberty fourth 4¼s. Liberty 3½s eased, as did one of the Treasury 3¾s. Issues of American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, Duquesne Light, Norfolk & Western, Union Pacific and others of the high bracket group rallied 1 to around 3 points.

Among the most active carrier gainers were some loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rook Island, Erie, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Wabash and Western Pacific.

American Dollar Recovers As Europe Pays for Goods

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The American dollar rebounded rather sharply in the foreign exchange market today after having suffered some of its worst reverses in a year or more.

The recovery was generally attributed to short covering by European speculators and to the transfer of funds here for the purchase of commodities and securities.

The British pound sterling, after another overnight gain of more than 7 cents, dropped back from $3.90 to $3.74¾ for cables. At the latter rate sterling showed a loss of nearly 9 cents from last night's close. French francs yielded about ⅛ of a cent, at 4.20 cents, and Dutch guilders were down more than ½ cent, at 43.40 cents. German marks fell back 1 cent, to 25 cents.

Profit-Taking Slashes Silver Futures' Prices

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Heavy profit-taking appeared in the silver futures market today. Opening quotations were generally lower, but more selling developed and at one time most positions showed overnight losses of 3 cents an ounce. There was some recovery from these lows, however.

Sales at noon amounted to $8,600,000 ounces.

Rubber Closes Irregular.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Crude rubber futures closed irregular. May, 3.65; July, 3.80 bid; September, 3.98 bid; December, 4.11@4.15. Smokes ribbed, spot, closed 3.70, nominal.

CURB TREND LOWER IN WIDER CHANGING

One to Four Points Clipped From Quotations; Sales, 717,000 Shares.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Curb prices moved rather widely today, but heaviness of utilities and some industrials tended to be offset by firmness of most oils and a number of specialties. Trading was still heavy, though turnover of 717,000 shares was about 150,000 under Thursday's volume.

Power and light issues ran into persistent profit-taking which slipped 1 to nearly 4 points from quotations on Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and American Light & Traction. New England Telephone, an inactive, was off 12½ on a few sales.

The nonferrous metal group tended lower, realizing being especially noticeable in Newmont Mining, New Jersey Zinc and Aluminum of America. The last named lost 8 points. Gold issues, however, firmed.

Oils were active. Gulf closed a shade lower, but Indiana, International Petroleum and Creole firmed.

Chicago & Northwestern Refund Plan Operative

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The plan of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway to refund a debenture bond issue of some $6,555,000, maturing May 1, next, was declared operative today by officials of the company.

Under the plan the maturity will be met through the payment to bondholders of 50 per cent in cash borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and 50 per cent in general mortgage bonds.

SILK MARKET.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed weak; sales, 5,790 bales. May, 1.40; July, 1.38; October, 1.37@1.38.

Open market quotations (60-day basis). Shanghai steam filature, 78 per cent seriplane, 20-22s, 1.27; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, 1.07; Japanese special crack double extra, 81 per cent seriplane, 12-15s, 1.97.

WHEAT VALUES DROP AS BUYING DWINDLES

Rallies Fail to Maintain Thursday's Level; Oats Close Unchanged.

Chicago, April 21 (A.P.).—Inflation lost its grip today as an immediate stimulating influence on the grain markets.

Hectic buying that has recently hoisted wheat more than 20 cents a bushel went into comparative eclipse today and prices worked down grade, especially in the late dealings. A sharp break in British exchange and in the value of silver, with New York stock market weakness and rains in drought districts of domestic winter wheat territory, had unsettling effects on grains traders' confidence.

Wheat closed unsteady at almost the day's bottom prices, 1¼ to 1¾ under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ¾ down; oats unchanged, and provisions varying from 17 cents' decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Decline Starts Early.

In the face of announcement of administration plans for $3,000,000,000 inflation, grain prices fell as soon as business started. Selling orders predominated in all the speculative pits, and new buying was of much less volume than of late. At times, however, the wheat market rallied to above yesterday's finish, largely as a result of purchasing on orders from Eastern sources, and because of assertions that ending of drought came too late to be of much benefit in the bulk of hard wheat areas.

Many professional traders expressed opinions that the wheat market had gone forward too rapidly, and that there was need now for extreme caution. Heavy selling of wheat holdings was apparent throughout the day, and although much of the process was attributed to profit taking the effect was to weaken the market. Reports of delays to spring wheat seeding failed to act as an offset, and many speculative interests showed a disposition to adopt a waiting attitude pending legislative and diplomatic developments at Washington.

Corn and oats were relatively firmer than wheat. Eastern shipping demand for corn was improved.

Provisions averaged lower with grains.

COTTON PRICES RISE IN SPITE OF SELLING

July Closes at 7.49 With Market Unchanged to 5 Points Higher.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Reactions from an early advance in cotton today under realizing and Southern selling were followed by rallies in the late trading, on covering combined with a renewal of commission house demand and trade buying. July contracts, after selling off from 7.68 to 7.35, closed at 7.49. The general market finished unchanged to 5 points higher.

Active months sold about 18 to 21 points net higher during the early trading on more or less general buying promoted by the early strength of sterling and a fairly steady showing of Liverpool. Houses with foreign trade connections were again buyers, but the market encountered increased Southern selling and profit-taking, and reactionary impulses were evident during the day.

Futures Prices Cut.

These appeared to be promoted by the decline in sterling and the market eased about 29 to 34 points from the early high levels with May declining from 7.52 to 7.20, and October from 7.89 to 7.55. Buying continued, however, and offerings tapered off somewhat in the late trading when prices worked back to or slightly above yesterday's close.

Reports that the proposed inflationary program had been favorably reported to the Senate as an amendment to the farm relief bill appeared to have been anticipated and attracted comparatively little comment, but may have contributed to the firmer tone of the late market.

Sales today, 21,048 bales, making 6,480,010 so far this season. Port receipts, 24,479. United States port stocks, 4,234,493.

Roosevelt Money Program Backed

Leading Economists Hail Control of Dollar as Sound.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—The vigorous program launched by President Roosevelt to control the purchasing power of the dollar strikes at the roots of what one prominent group of economists has regarded as the vital weakness of the present economic system.

These economists have long urged control of the value of currency to smooth out fluctuations in the price level. Various means have been suggested. Prominent in the group are Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, John Maynard Keynes, of England, and Prof. Gustav Cassel, of Sweden.

Opponents of the plan say human ingenuity is inadequate to the gigantic task of managing a currency, and that no better system has been devised than the international gold standard. They attribute the breakdown of the international gold standard to the abnormally huge shifting of funds resulting from the World War, together with the innumerable restrictions upon the movement of goods.

MACKS, OUTHIT AND OUTFIELDED, BEAT NATS, 3-1

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.

MONTE WEAVER, the only member of the Nats' big five pitching staff who hasn't lost a game, will be entrusted with the twirling duties by Manager Cronin tomorrow. Connie Mack's choice will be a deep, dark secret until 3 p. m.

The A's were showing very little respect for Bluege all afternoon bunting or attempting to bunt in every inning.

You could cut the gloom in the Nats' locker room with a knife after the game today. The boys aren't enjoying their slump any more than you are.

Crowder was pitching base hits off the A's bats at the most inopportune times during the first three innings. The A's scored one run on one hit in the first and two runs on two hits in the second. Which is maximum production.

The several hundred fans who see the games here from the Twentieth street rooves of the poachers, must pay Uncle Sam the 10 per cent tax just the same.

The Nats had an edge over the A's in everything but runs. They even outnumbered 'em in men left on base. Ten of the eleven Nats who reached base were tossed nice big cast-iron anchors by their pals at the plate.

After Foxx's exhibition of Thursday Cronin adopted the strategy of walking Foxx on his first appearance at the plate. But wth Foxx walking unintentionally and Bishop walking with very deliberate intention it's not difficult to recognize the position of the Washington pitchers.

Buddy Myer set out for first base at great speed and rounded second on the gallop until he realized his sock had gone over the right-field fence, whereupon he slowed down to a jog with a nonchalance known only to home-run hitters.

Mickey Cochrane almost knocked Buddy Myer over with a line drive in the fifth and then Joe Kuhel fell flat on his face to spear another liner that robbed Mickey of a hit in the seventh.

The A's only hit off Burke in the three innings he worked was a gift from Burke himself. The skinny pitcher tried to throw Higgins' topped roller in front of the plate before he picked it up, which has been tried unsuccessfully for years in the big leagues.

If looks could kill, Umpire Moriarty would have been a dead man in the ninth inning when he called the third strike on pinch-hitter Dave Harris. Dave ran him through with a 30-second stare.

With two men on base in the first inning, Schulte walloped the ball a mile 880 yards up and 880 yards down into Mickey Cochrane's mitt.

And the statisticians have figured that Jimmy Foxx is at present 3 days, 8 hours and 27½ minutes behind his home-run pace of 1932.

Bennie Loses To Connelly For Title

High School Golfer Wins Rock Creek Open, 4 and 3.

Malloy Beats Seay in Medal Play-Off by 2 and 1.

By DAVE HERMAN.

FLASHING a rock-steady brand of golf, John Connelly, young Roosevelt High expert, conquered Ralph Bennie, District athlete, by 4 and 3, yesterday to win the Rock Creek open championship.

After being given a pretty even battle for the first nine, Connelly increased his pace on the home stretch, and Bennie found himself hopelessly outclassed.

The high school lad commanded a 2-up advantage on the stocky Bennie going to the ninth, but his faithful putter abruptly went haywire and he was guilty of 4-putting the green, losing the hole to round the turn 1 up.

Connelly then proceeded to win the tenth, eleventh and twelfth and halved the thirteenth.

The climax came on the longth fifteenth hole, which Connelly played in orthodox figures, while Bennie stumbled into trouble and wound up with a six.

Scores 37 for First Nine.

Playing with unruffled calm, Connelly pounded his way over the rolling fairways and tricky greens of the first nine for a 37, and had he finished the last three holes of the incoming cruise in par figures would have posted something like a 76. In the meantime, Bennie parked a number of his drives and iron shots in the woods and found himself in tough spots trying to recover. The basket ball star shot a 40 for the first nine.

In the playoff for the medal prize, George Malloy, municipal kingpin, defeated W. W. Seay, cosharer with a 74 in the qualifying round on Tuesday, by 2 and 1. It was Malloy who was knocked out of the running on Thursday by Connelly.

Second-flight honors went to H. Allan, West Potomac champion, who defeated C. A. Runswick, 1 up, on the nineteenth hole. Allan was the golfer who defeated Volney Burnett in the most startling upset of the entire tournament.

Hare Conquers Milbourne.

A. P. Hare beat R. Milbourne, who conquered C. V. Bean, 2 and 1, in the morning semifinals, by 4 and 2, to carry off third-flight prize.

E. J. Enright walloped C. Vernon, 6 and 5, in the fourth division, after the former put out Kessler, 3 and 2, in the morning.

Beating G. Sutton, 4 and 3, in his morning semifinals, L. Beyers later turned his fire on F. Phillips, winning, 3 and 2, in the fifth-flight finals.

Aftre taking inventory of what took place along the Rock Creek front during the four days of the championship play, Manager Harry Graham discovered that Rock Creek golfers won all the honors in the finals, with the exception of Allan, third-flight winner.

INDIANS TAKE 4TH FROM TIGERS

Hildebrand Gives Up Only Five Hits in 5-0 Victory.

CLEVELAND, April 21 (A.P.).—Oral Hildebrand's pitching and Bill Cissell's hitting combined to give the Indians a 5 to 0 victory over Detroit today.

Hildebrand permitted only five hits and not a man got farther than second base. Cissell contributed a single, a double and a home run, driving in one run and scoring two others. His homer, the first of the season in the stadium, was made on a drive in the left-field stands in the fourth inning.

The Cleveland batters made nine hits off Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, 21-year-old rookie pitcher for the Tigers. Rowe also handed the Tribe one run on a balk and another on a wild pitch.

The shutout was the first registered this season by the Indians, and their fourth triumph over the Tigers in as many games.

Loughran Defeats Baffled Gastanaga

Wins Decision in Chicago; Is Stunned Once by Dangerous Foe.

Chicago, April 21 (A.P.).—Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia boxing master, mastered the Basque Blaster, Isidoro Gastanaga, with a marvelous display of boxing skill, to win the decision without a dissenting voice in their ten-round contest in the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Baffled and bewildered by the superb technique of the stately Philadelphian, Gastanaga, dangerous to the last, never gave up trying and whistled left and right punches past Loughran's chin in an effort to slip over a knockout punch. Loughran, however, had too much speed and skill for him.

Loughran's only dangerous second was in the ninth round, when Gastanaga, becoming weary of having Loughran's long left hand pop into his nose, crowded into him and connected with a short right to the chin. The blow shook up Loughran for an instant.

Gastanaga, with a record of 25 knockout victories to his credit, never backed up during the ten rounds. He continually charged into Loughran, only to receive that tantalizing left hand in the face, varied now and then with that short right uppercut.

A crowd of 8,000 attended.

Atlantic City Camp Opened by Max Baer

Atlantic City, N. J., April 21 (A.P.). Max Adelbert Baer, the California heavyweight, today began training for his fight six weeks hence with Max Schmeling, German former champion.

Some shadow boxing and calesthenics made up his first day program.

Tomorrow morning he plans to "hit the road." Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, announced Baer would make a flying trip May 1 to Hartford, Conn., to engage in an exhibition bout.

Occidental's Pinmen Set 2 Marks

World Record Game of 736 and Set of 2,065 Scored.

Rosenberg, With 178 and 458, Hero of League Match.

A SCORE SHEET full of x's, double x's and triple x's marked the spot where the Occidental Restaurant team shattered two world's records at the Lucky Strike Alleys last night. The boys from Fred Buchholtz's Pennsylvania avenue establishment left the mapleways smoldering after one of the finest duckpin bowling exhibitions witnessed here in many years.

A total of 736 pins, blasted loose from their moorings in the first game, erased the mark of 721 hung up by the Charter Oaks team at Hartford, Conn., April 10, 1931, and when the order to cease firing had been given a second score of 2,065 for the three-game set was hoisted up on the record board, replacing the 1,990 mark, also the property of the New Englanders.

Using his much discussed "swish" ball for the first time rather than his old reliable "spinner," Maxie Rosenberg, once the outstanding marksman of local alleys, rolled 178 in his final game, establishing season record for the District League, in which the team was competing. His total of 458 for the block cracked the league's all-time mark held jointly by Earl McPhillomey and Jack Talburt.

Clarke Still on Record Team.

For Astor Clarke the night meant a continuation of his own particular record of being a member of every local record-breaking team in the last two years. Occidental, incidentally, won all three games from its opponents, Lucky Strike.

Swim Title Won By Leonore Kight

Pennsylvania Girl Takes 220-Yard Crown; Sets New 220 Mark.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 21 (A.P.).—Miss Leonore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., tonight won the national 220-yard free-style swimming championship by defeating Miss Eleanor Bridges, of Whitinsville, Mass., and Miss Sue Robertson, of New York, in the finals of the national women's senior A. A. U. title race at that distance. Her time was 2 minutes, 35 2-5 seconds.

Miss Kight also lowered the world's 200-yard mark in the same race as three judges clocked her at that distance, in 2 minutes, 20.5 seconds, or one-tenth second lower than the record set in 1930 by Helene Madison.

Miss Katherine Rawls, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who had been looked upon as one of the favorites to win the title, withdrew from the event to conserve her energy for the high board diving tomorrow night. Miss Dorothea Dickinson, of New York, who qualified for the finals this afternoon, withdrew from the finals in favor of her teammate, Miss Robertson, and decided to conserve her strength for the medley race.

IRVING HADLEY, former Nat pitcher now with the Browns, who set the Chisox down with two hits yesterday.

HADLEY WINS, GIVING ONLY TWO HITS

Pitches Browns to 4-0 Victory Over White Sox.

CHICAGO, April 21 (A.P.).—Irving (Bump) Hadley held the Chicago White Sox to two singles, faced just 29 men, and pitched the St. Louis Browns to a 4-to-0 triumph today.

The husky Brownie right-hander, who once was a member of the Sox, was given a tussle by Young Paul Gregory for seven innings, but, in the eighth, a walk and three hits, along with a hit off Chad Kimsey, who replaced Gregory, accounted for all the St. Louis scoring.

Mule Haas singled off Hadley in the first, but was caught up in a double play. Jack Hayes, who singled in the fourth and reached second on Bruce Campbell's error, was the only Chicagoan to reach the middle station. Al Simmons walked with two out in the fourth, but got no farther.

Trojan Field Stars Ready for Stanford

Stanford University, Calif., April 21 (A.P.).—Southern California's Trojans and Stanford's Indians, concededly the two strongest track and field teams of the collegiate world, meet here tomorrow in the first of a home and home meet program and from the outcome of the classic is expected to be traced the eventual disposition of the 1933 national championship.

Undefeated by its traditional rival since 1929, Southern California again will swing into the battle for points as the favorite. Stanford's super star, Big Ben Eastman, world's record-holder in the quarter-mile and outstanding half-miler in the country, will be absent. Eastman pulled a tendon a few weeks ago and the injury, although mending, has kept him out of competiton since.

Gayety Screen Shows Nats-A.'s Game Today

Coleman's invention, heralded as the forerunner of television, will carry a play-by-play account of today's game between Washington and Philadelphia at the Gayety Theater. The device shows the entire playing field and, of course, the players, and fans are able to see each play as it is made.

Manager Jimmy Lake has contracted to have the invention at the theater all season for use when the Nats are on the road.

Canada and Cuba Begin Davis Cup Play May 11

Canada will send four players to compete and Cuba will send three. Marcel Rainville, one of the Canadian players, will arrive Sunday.

Pirates Lead In National; Win, 5-1

Crowd of Only 13,000 Sees Opener at Pittsburgh.

Winners Get All Runs in 8th; Reds Held to Three Hits.

PITTSBURGH, April 21 (A.P.).—With an eighth inning explosion of their heavy artillery and a three-hit performance by their moundsmen, the Pittsburgh Pirates opened their 1933 season for the home folks today by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 1.

A disappointing crowd of 13,000—one of the smallest in 30 years—turned out to see the ten-year-old daughter of Honus (Hans) Wagner, greatest shortstop of all times and now a Pirate coach, toss out the first ball.

Then for six innings Bill Swift, who had beaten the Reds in the first game of the season at Cincinnati last week with a four-hit game, tangled with Si Johnson, Cincinnati ace, in a great hurling duel.

Bottomley, Grantham Field Nicely.

Spectacular fielding by Jim Bottomley and George Grantham checked potential Pirate rallies while "Big Jim" added to their discomfort by hoisting a pitch out of the park in the sixth for a home run.

Manager Gibson sent in Jensen to bat for Swift in the eighth and his single started the Pirate fireworks. The Lloyd half of the Waner Twins duplicated the hit and both moved up on Lindstrom's sacrifice. Johnson deliberately passed Brother Paul Waner and filled the bases.

"Pie" Traynor, starting his thirteenth year in a Pirate uniform, lashed a two-base hit into right, scoring Jensen and L. Waner.

Benton Replaces Johnson.

Suhr completed Johnson's rout with a triple and Benton went to the box for the Reds. Piet's second hit of the day sent Traynor home with the fifth and final run.

The victory, with the defeat of the New York Giants, hoisted the Pirates into first place in the National League.

A tablet in memory of John Gruber, dean of baseball writers and official scorer for the Pirates from 1893 until his death last year, was unveiled prior to the game by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers.

Braves Get 4 Hits, But Defeat Giants

Win First of Season, 3-1; Travis Jackson Plays Two Innings.

New York, April 21 (A.P.).—Although they got only four hits, the Boston Braves succeeded in winning their first game of the season and giving the Giants their first defeat when Hal Schumacher's wildness gave Boston a 3-to-1 decision.

Schumacher handed out two passes in the fourth inning and uncorked a pair of wild pitches, which, with singles by Baxter Jordan and Frank Hogan, produced all the Boston runs. Harry Seibold weakened after seven good innings and was replaced by Ben Cantwell.

Travis Jackson made his first appearance at short for the Giants since last June, playing the last two innings. He hit a single and started a double play on his only fielding chance.

WISE ANNE, PAYING $13.20, CAPTURES GRAW FEATURE RACE

8,000 Watch Filly Win Easily

Volette Runs Second, Half Length Ahead of Enactment.

Bright Bird Winner of Second Race to Pay $20.40.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, April 21.—Wise Anne, popular daughter of Wise Counsellor, did her stuff here this afternoon and brought much joy to the W. C. Weants, one of the numerous huband-wife and owner-trainer combinations. In fact, Wise Anne did her stuff so thoroughly and with such dispatch that the finish of the Adorable—the day's feature—found her two lengths in front of C. V. Whitney's Volette and another half length in advance of W. R. Coe's Enactment. The latter broke the spell of the Pompey horses hereabouts.

Wise Anne, who won some $15,000 as a 2-year-old, the bulk of which came out of her victory in the Richard Johnson Stakes at Laurel, was hustled along by the veteran Jimmy Smith and the combination had only a few anxious moments. They were soon after the start when Dark Love and Bobby Jones tried to impress the fact that they were setting that thar pace on the others in the field.

When Dark Love had her fling, Wise Anne forged ahead and the race was no contest thereafter, although Violette came from far back to take the place in company with Enactment.

-Fall Weather Continues.

Wise Anne was one of the lukewarm betting propositions and came through with a $13.20 mutuel, which brought cries of joy from the lucky ticket holders in the crowd, which numbered near the 8,000 mark.

The fall weather continued despite the bright sun and the track, slow at the start of the program, was edging nearer the fast stage as the card progressed.

If Ida, a General Lee filly and grouped in the field, won the opening engagement in a stretch drive with Golden Measure. The third money went to Hoursend, another field horse. If Ida and Golden Measure hooked up rounding the stretch turn and Remillard had just a little too much 2-year-old under him. The field was a good thing, being backed down to a close of 3-1 and paid a $7 mutuel.

Bright Bird Takes Second.

Bright Bird, popular Maryland longshot, took the second race with ease over the 6-furlong sprint course. Dabson hustled the Bright Knight gelding out in front at the barrier rise and was never headed, although Dabson gave him a taste of the whip at the quarter pole. Johnny Bejshak brought Tommy Lad up on the outside to take the place from Below Cost. Brave and Bold, the favorite, was fourth. Bright Bird's price hovered around 7-2 until the last odds when 12-1 was posted. The payoff was at a $20.40 mutuel.

Vishnu and Happy Anne finished lips apart in the third race and the judges gave the decision to Vishnu on the inside. From the press box and the stands it looked as if Munden had Happy Anne up in time. There was much enthusiastic but unproductive booing. Vishnu and Cordoba hooked up for 4 furlongs before the latter dropped out of it. Happy Anne then took up the chase and the riding battle was under way. Vishnu tired during the last sixteenth. The winner paid $3.20.

Boscobel was backed down to 90 cents on the dollar and ran as well, winning the fifth race by seven lengths from Tremendous and Grand Acre. Duke Bellizzi only had to ride.

In the sixth, Flying Max stalled off the lightning finish of Garlic to take the purse. Meridian Queen was third; the latter went to the post the favorite.

McGonigle held up the start for 5 minutes and then beat the gate for some three lengths after being placed on the outside. Mills sat tight and romped home. Matadi was second and Kneehigh third.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT BIRD, $20.40, $11.40, $7.20; TOMMY LAD, $10.40, $5.20; BELOW COST, $4.00.

BRIGHT BIRD, going in his best form and hustled into the lead, stalled off keen early contention from BRAVE AND BOLD, and came out into a clear lead gradually during the stretch drive. TOMMY LAD, prominent from the start, swung to the outside during the stretch run and finished stoutly. BELOW COST, kept forwardly placed, responded to punishment and outlasted BRAVE AND BOLD. Latter forced a steady early pace and continued gamely at the end. MARGIE W. was shuffled back midway of the back stretch and came wide thereafter. LOUGH PORT was never dangerous. The others were outrun.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:54. Winner, H. T. Archibald's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VISHNU, $8.20, $5.20, $3.20; HAPPY ANNE, $7.00, $4.40; INTEGRITY, $3.00.

VISHNU, a stout factor from the start, raced CORDOBA into submission in the first five furlongs, saved ground and holding on resolutely just lasted to stall off HAPPY ANNE. Latter, going in her best form, worked her way up on the outside, reached the winner in the final furlong and fought it out stubbornly. INTEGRITY, outpaced early, slipped through on the inside in the final drive, but weakened right at the end. HACKY H. showed fast early speed during early. MACK SENNET could never reach the leaders. PRETTY WISE raced well. CORDOBA was rushed off his feet to hold an early lead and he flattened out badly. He bothered PRETTY WISE and HACKY H. when he swerved inside the final furlong. DON GUZMAN raced very green.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Adorable. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:25. Off at 4:28. Winner, Mrs. W. C. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE ANNE, $13.20, $4.40, $2.60; VOLETTE, $4.00, $2.40; ENACTMENT, $2.20.

WISE ANNE followed DARK LOVE closely in the first half mile, took command when entering the home stretch, and then held VOLETTE perfectly safe. VOLETTE, leading early speed and setting wide front, was gamely rated. ENACTMENT, but could not menace the winner. ENACTMENT, weakly ridden and meeting with early interference, finished on her own courage. HIDORA showed nice speed for five furlongs. SPEED BOAT broke well but appeared to sulk. DARK LOVE had plenty of speed until she began to tire in the final three furlongs. VISA displayed a flash of early foot.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:04. Winner, J. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOSCOBEL, $3.80, $2.60, $2.40; TREMENDOUS, $3.20, $3.00; GRAND ACRE, $4.80.

BOSCOBEL, racing at if much the best, sprinted into a commanding lead when settled on the back stretch and having good speed thereafter, held swav until the finish. TREMENDOUS, always well up, was unable to threaten the winner when put to pressure. GRAND ACRE easily held the others safe. BLACK PATRICIA could not improve her position. FELICIANA was carried wide at the first turn, and Munden was unable to do her justice when her saddle slipped. The others were never factors.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:34. Winner, C. E. Grove's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING MAX, $7.60, $4.60, $2.80; GARLIC, $4.80, $3.00; MERIDIAN QUEEN, $2.40.

FLYING MAX, under steadying restraint until midway of the back stretch, moved up fast to displace MERIDIAN QUEEN, and strongly handled in the final drive, had enough left to withstand GARLIC. Latter, going in improved fashion, secured racing room on the inside to reach contention, and then came strongly on the outside of the winner. MERIDIAN QUEEN, rushed stoutly to take command, had nothing left when the final test came. CLOUDY DAY closed with good courage. VIMONT had no excuses. AUSTERLITZ and KEITH stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:00. Off at 6:11. Winner, P. D. Two-dollar mutuels paid—McGONIGLE, $11.20, $6.60, $3.80; MATADI, $12.40, $5.80; KNEEHIGH, $3.00.

McGONIGLE outbroke his field when taken to the outside of the stall gate, shook off SQUEEZE PLAY and was never threatened thereafter. MATADI, well placed from the start, finished courageously. KNEEHIGH worked her way up on the outside and was racing gamely at the end. LITTLE STOKES, a slow beginner, finished stoutly. SQUEEZE PLAY began tiring after six furlongs. MISS CORINNE raced in light quarters most of the trip. SUE McFARLAND broke slowly and was far back throughout. ALCMAN showed dull form.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: HAVRE DE GRACE, APRIL 21.

Bright Bird, at $20.40, and Flying Max, $7.60, were my winners today. We were prominent in the money all afternoon. The boys missed a hair-line decision when the judges ruled that Vishnu had beaten Happy Anne and she was better than 7-1. Mike did my booing. In the final, McGonigle beat the gate so thoroughly that the slow-starting Knee High had no chance. However, tomorrow's another day, even if it rains. Here's the Bennings picks. BILL.

FIRST RACE—BUTTER BEANS won for me opening day and she picks up 3 pounds tomorrow. Is in keen form as that race suggests. Seldom wins two in a row, but the rather soft footing will make her a good bet. ON TAP won eight races last year and must be considered. LADINO probably will miss the mud, but is dangerous.

SECOND RACE—I am told that STAND PAT is an excellent juvenile. Trained at Pimlico and jolted the clockers. RUNNING HEELS may improve off that last effort. WISE DAUGHTER, from Florida, for the show.

THIRD RACE—Unless POMPEIUS pulls a tendon on the way to the post, the result of this race is already in the books. Should make it two in a row. MICROPHONE and SCOTCH GOLD will go the chief chasing.

FOURTH RACE—CAESARS' GHOST did not run a bad race behind Poppyman the other day, but it was not the effort that the clockers had expected. The GHOST gets in with only 102 pounds and may find SWIVEL and REPAID in need of a tightener.

FIFTH RACE—TAMBOUR was trained at Benning and Preston Burch was not idling during the open winter. His mare was brought along carefully. She didn't run her race here the first time out, but watch her tomorrow. EQUIPOISE has found this track hard luck, which is no reason to discard him. However, he may need the edge of a race. CANBON still has those fine trials to recommend her.

SIXTH RACE—PARDEE gets a shift in the weights tomorrow that may decide the issue in this. Was shipped here from the South in good condition. KEGGY showed well the other day. BROADWAY LIGHTS for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—MODERN TIMES scored handily here the other day and will not be frightened by the change in track conditions. TAZEWELL and BIDE A WEE for the rest.

Season Debut Today for Repaid

Equipoise Also Due to Open Campaign at the Graw.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 21 (A.P.).—Another outstanding Kentucky Derby hopeful will swing into action tomorrow when James F. Johnson's Repaid, second choice in the prerace betting, makes his 3-year-old debut here tomorrow. C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, holder of the world's record for 1 mile at 1:34 2-5, also will make his first start of the season.

Repaid, medium of the heaviest play in the Derby future books, will start in a mile and 70-yard race against six other promising eligibles for the $50,000 Churchill Downs stakes. Equipoise will get his initial test in the $7,500 Philadelphia handicap, run over 1 1-16 miles.

Although Repaid probably will go to the post the public choice, there is expected to be strong support for Adolphe Pons' entry of Swivel and Projectile. Swivel, one of the five fillies named for the Derby, took the measure of Repaid, among others, in the Pimlico Futurity last year.

George H. (Pete) Bostwick's Garden Message, which split Swivel and Repaid in the Pimlico feature, also has been named for tomorrow's race. The remainder of the field includes Samuel D. Riddle's War Glory, William Ziegler, jr.'s, Keep Out and Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Caesars Ghost.

Equipoise, winner of $267,210 in three years of racing, has been assigned 128 pounds and will give from 16 to 30 pounds to his eight rivals. Despite his heavy impost, the son of Pennant was made the 6-to-5 choice in the prerace betting.

Jeby, Jones Suspended For Year

Action Is Effective in 32 States Allied With N. B. A.

CINCINNATI, April 21 (A.P.).—Peter A. Horbach, secretary of the Ohio Boxing Commission, today declared a year's suspension, effective immediately, on Ben Jeby, of New York, and Gorilla Jones, of Akron, as a result of charges of "fake" in their fight in Cleveland Tuesday night.

The suspension is automatically effective in the 32 States allied with the National Boxing Association.

The suspension was asked by the Cleveland Boxing Commission. Placed under the ban also was Suey Welch, Jones' manager, and Hymie Caplin, manager for Jeby.

Horbach said he was told that the bout in Cleveland was "the rawest deal ever pulled." It led to a motion of the Cleveland City Council recommending that the purses of the two fighters be withheld and either returned to patrons of the bout, or distributed to charities, and to suits by spectators for return of their admissions.

The fight was a nontitle affair, though Jones is the N. B. A. middleweight champion and Jeby the New York State Boxing Commission's nomination for world title holder.

predicament, and held the A's to one hit during the rest of the game. He stopped Jimmy Foxx, who had reached base seven consecutive times with five hits and two walks in two games.

Only Heinie Manush found Cain to his liking, lambasting a double and two singles at odd moments during the pastime, but languishing on base each time. He doubled with one out in the first, and Goslin walked, but neither Cronin nor Schulte could supply the necessary punch.

Williams put Bluege on base in the second with a wild throw, only to start a double play on Crowder after Sewell singled. In the

Hilltop Nine Beaten by Temple

G. U. Team Makes 9 Errors in Dropping Game, 8 to 4.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 21.—With Len Gudd, who starred in both football and basket ball for the Owls, twirling on the tee for Temple's Owls and allowing only seven scattered hits, Georgetown University's diamond stars were handed an 8-to-4 setback here this afternoon. Nine errors aided in Temple's scoring.

Gudd held the Washington collegians to 1 run in the first five rounds and then slowed up slightly when his team sported a good lead down the home stretch. He fanned eleven members of the Capital combination and issued five free tickets.

Lindquist and Carpenter were the moundsmen for the Hilltoppers and they were touched for eleven hits. Lindquist permitted nine in seven rounds, and with two free tickets, was nicked for half a dozen of the Temple tallies. Carpenter hurled the eighth and two hits furnished another Owl run.

Georgetown's safeties were scattered among seven players while De Zube was the heavy hitter for the Owls, collecting a double and two singles. Gibson had three singles.

Tech Nine Beats Episcopal, 10-6

Playing its first official game in the school's stadium, Tech High School defeated Emerson Institute by a score of 10-6 yesterday. There were no dedicatory ceremonies; the boys just got out there and slugged the ball, and it was longer and more frequent hits that won for the Maroon and Gray.

Of the fifteen hits Tech collected, one from the bat of Williams was good for a circuit trip. Chewning held the losers to six hits and, except for the fifth inning, when Emerson scraped together five runs, had the situation well in hand.

THE public golf links are getting the big play this spring. All the former millionaires are using them.

* * * * *

And men who, four years ago, wouldn't look for a lost $1.50 imported ball, now tie up the links searching the underbrush for "repaints" that cost them $1 a dozen.

* * * *

A public links superintendent reports that last Sunday one of the fiercest battles ever staged on the course took place between a former oil magnate and a famous leader of the 1928 bull market over the rightful ownership of a golf ball so old that the outside cover was off.

* * * *

"See that foursome ahead," said the public links keeper. "It's my idea of a mixed foursome. Two of 'em used to be on the governing board of one of the most expensive private courses in the country. A third one inherited an estate that was worth millions in July, 1929, and now carries his own bags. The fourth fellow has always been broke, so it makes a nice congenial little group."

* * * *

At this point two plump men of distinguished bearing, but in shabby knickerbockers, came to the first tee.

"Want caddies?" asked the caddy master.

"No, thank you," they replied.

"They tell me those two used to hire caddies even for putting practice in the boom days," whispered the superintendent. "The one on the left was president of a Long Island club where you had to buy $5,000 worth of stock before you could be voted on for membership. The other fellow bought U. S. Steel at 175 for the long pull."

* * * *

See that man and wife just coming up to the tenth hole?" continued the public links superintendent. "That's Mr. and Mrs. Fhinneyfink, of the Babylon and Locust Valley Finnyfinks. Used to belong to four golf clubs and play the last nine holes on a different course. He was one of the company's largest holders of General Electric common. Had a lot of Motors, too.

* * * *

"You wouldn't believe it possible, but he took a broken wooden tee to the caddy shop yesterday to have it repaired and complained because it had lasted only six weeks!"

* * * *

Just then a wan little man sat down on a rock near the first tee.

"Geoffrey T. Dixby-Dixby 2d, whispers the superintendent. "He's of the oil family."

Commission Aims To Coordinate Aid

Dr. Reichelderfer Planning to Merge Private and Public Agencies.

The District Commissioners are taking steps to coordinate the unemployment relief work of private and public welfare agencies so as to bring the activity almost entirely under the direction of the Board of Public Welfare, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman, stated yesterday.

Commenting on published reports that the Welfare Board and the executive committee of the Associated Charities had urged prompt action in this regard, Dr. Reichelderfer said that steps had already been taken at Senate hearings to liberalize the language of the District bill relative to the Welfare Board so as to provide more money for unemployment relief.

BLANKS ARE READY FOR BEER REPORTS

Auditor Predicts Municipal Tax Alone Will Net $1,000 Per Day.

The District tax assesor's office announced yesterday it was prepared to issue blanks for the reporting of beer sales in Washington since April 7, but the reports and taxes are not due until May 1 to 10. The blanks may be procured at room 101, District Building.

All off-sale and on-sale permit holders must file these reports each month and pay a tax of $1 a barrel on all beer sold. No taxes are paid directly to the District government by the brewers or the wholesale dealers, although reports are received from them on all sales, so that the assesor's office can check the retailers' reports.

Although the work of the tax assessor's office, under the direction of Deputy Assessor Charles A. Russell, will be greatly increased by the beer tax, no additional clerks can be assigned to the task.

Much Extra Work.

A total of 1,373 reports must be handled each month from the off-sale and on-sale licensees, and in addition checks must be made against the reports from a dozen or so breweries and 66 wholesalers.

The tax assessor has accepted the following standards of measurement on which the tax shall be computed: 12 ounces to a bottle, 31 gallons to a barrel. The tax will be 8 cents a case, 25 cents a qharter of a barrel, 50 cents a half, or 13 cents an eighth. Reports must cover even the fractional part of a barrel sold by the end of the month.

While no definite figures are obviously available, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor, has roughly estimated that municipal taxes on beer, irrespective of license fees, will run as high as $1,000 a day, or $365,000 a year.

1,441 Hold Permits.

Deputy Assessor Russell said his staff would be prepared to compute taxes immediately upon receipt of the reports, so that beer retailers may pay the tax immediately afterward at the tax collector's office. His assistants will also be available to instruct those who do not know how to fill out their reports.

Wholesalers and brewers, both local and those out of town shipping beer here, must make monthly detailed reports on the amount of beer sold and the purchasers. They will pay taxes, however, only when they hold off-sale licenses as well.

The District Commissioners are empowered to revoke the permits of any retailers who fail to pay the municipal tax by the 10th of every month. There are at present a total of 1,441 permit holders classified as follows: 734 off-sale, 639 on-sale, 66 wholesale and 2 brewers.

False Statement Causes Beer Permit Withdrawal

Upon recommendation of the Beverage Permits Board, the District Commissioners yesterday revoked the temporary beer license granted Meyer D. Rosenbloth, alias Myer David Rosenblott, "because of a false statement contained in the application."

Rosenbloth, who obtained an off-sale permit for an establishment at 207 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, stated in his application that he had never been convicted of a crime. Police records show that he has been convicted several times, the board reported, "one of which was the crime of receiving stolen property."

The Commissioners further referred the case to the United States attorney's office for prosecution if the latter sees fit.

Young Man in Serious Condition From Poison

Lake Richey, 24, 2026 Kingle road northwest, was reported in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night after having swallowed a quantity of poison, police said in a suicidal attempt.

He was found unconscious at his home by his brother, Franz Richey, 1950 Sixteenth street northwest, to whom he is said to have telephoned after taking the poison. First-aid treatment was given by the fire rescue squad. Despondency over financial matters is believed to have caused his act.

Final District Budget Changes Slated Today

The Senate District Appropriations subcommittee will meet at 10:30 a. m. today to make their final changes in the District appropriations bill, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, chairman, announced yesterday.

The final session, originally scheduled for yesterday morning, was postponed at the last minute due to Senate consideration of the administration's inflation legislation. The Senate subcommittee is expected to liberalize the drastic House provisions in the District bill.

FIRST LADY VISITOR AT GREAT SHOW OF CANINE BLUEBLOODS

Ishbel MacDonald Is Her Guest at Exhibit of Fashionable Breeds.

Maedchen, Betchen and Liebchen lolled their long bodies on their cushioned stalls at Washington Auditorium yesterday, their big brown eyes glowing with their belief that dachshunds may have another day now that beer is back.

The three aforementioned ladies are sleek brown dachshunds and are not least among the doggish royalty which are looking their best at the annual dog show of the National Capital Kennel Club.

At the auditorium more than 500 dogs of every clan are competing in the National Capital show for a host of prizes. Several thousand persons have already visited the hall. The show promises to be one of the greatest of the year in the country.

One of the first dogs to be seen as the building is entered is Merredip Tiney Tree, an immense English sheepdog owned by President Roosevelt.

200-Pound Saint Bernard.

But he is not so big as St. John Pearl of Waldeck, of the Waldeck Kennels, which scales more than 200 pounds. When he barks the whole hall shakes. He is a Saint Bernard.

Many prominent visitors were included among the crowd of dog fanciers who kept the auditorium filled throughout the day.

Sergt. Jiggs II, the bulldog mascot of the Quantico Marines, was on hand, of course. He glowered at a particularly frog-like dog of his kind, Yclept Sirloin O'Pugilist—a moniker which no doubt pays tribute to both his appetite and his fighting ability.

Last night Mrs. Roosevelt's participation featured the show. The First Lady and Miss Isbel MacDonald, her guest, were the center of attraction during the parade of the champions entered in the exhibit. Mrs. Roosevelt awarded the championship ribbons to the owners and had a friendly pat for each beast.

Mrs. Roosevelt has two dogs entered. They are Meggie, a Scottish terrier and Major, a German shepherd.

List of Prize Winners.

Winning animals in the breeds judged yesterday were:

Safe Crackers Obtain $275 in Movie Theft

Police last night were searching for safe crackers who early yesterday broke open the office safe of the Takoma Park Theater at Fourth and Butternut streets northwest and made off with $275.

Detectives of the robbery squad believe the thieves hid in the theater Thursday night before it closed, as all doors and windows were securely locked.

Views of Some Aristocrats in Fourth Annual Dog Show

Post Staff Photos.

The National Capital Kennel Club's fourth annual dog show opened yesterday with 588 entries, the largest dog show ever held in Washington. Dogs of all sizes, shapes and breeds were to be judged in the show, which will close tonight. Left, J. Deryl Chase 3d, with Crowell v. Baerenstein, a schnauzer owned and entered by his father. Center, Mrs. Edward W. Holtzendorf, of Atlanta, Ga., holds the Boston terrier, Hagerty King, owned by H. R. Routt, owner of the Dee Cee Kennels. Right, Miss Anne Gordon, of 3110 Thirty-fourth street northwest, shows Rasko v. d. Reppich-Waldeck, of the Waldeck Kennels. The 210-pound St. Bernard has been five times international champion and was chosen the best of his breed yesterday.

SITE MISTAKE HELD BACK OF FIRE CRASH

Three Injured Men Remain to Be Questioned Before Quiz Is Completed.

Battalion Chief T. B. Stanton, of the Fire Department, declared yesterday that a department trial board will sift the circumstances leading to the collision between a hook and ladder truck and a hose wagon Thursday afternoon, which injured six firemen.

Investigating the accident yesterday, Chief Stanton said that a mistake as to the location of the local alarm being answered appeared to be at the bottom of the crash.

Although every effort is made to be certain of locations of fires received by telephone, Chief Stanton said that it was humanly impossible to eliminate such mistakes altogether.

Both Capts. Eugene Trainor, of Truck Co. 7, and William L. McMahon, of Engine 8, in charge of the apparatus that crashed, were still in serious condition yesterday, though expected to recover. Neither could be questioned.

Private Daniel J. Plass, of No. 8 Engine also was still in the hospital. The other three firemen injured have been discharged from the hospital and sent home.

Chief Stanton said that his investigation would not be complete until he had interviewed the trio still under treatment. He said higher officials would set the date for the trial board hearing.

Man Seriously Injured In Motorcycle Crash

Rodolph K. Bissonette, 20, 1242 Pleasant street southeast, suffered a possible fracture of the skull, concussion of the brain and possible internal injuries late yesterday when his motorcycle collided with the automobile of Samuel B. Ashford, 3207 Fifteenth street northwest, at the Union Station Plaza. Police said that Ashford was turning from Delaware avenue into the plaza, when Bissonette's motorcycle crashed into his car.

Bissonette was treated at Casualty Hospital. His condition is regarded as serious.

INQUIRY PROPOSED IN D. C. SUFFRAGE

Resolution Is Introduced in House to Provide $2,500 for Extended Study.

The scope of the House District Committee's investigation of District questions ranging from taxes to rents, yesterday was broadened to include District suffrage.

Immediately following a special meeting of the committee, Chairman Mary T. Norton introduced in the House a resolution adopted by the committee. It would provide $2,500 to cover the expenses of the investigation. Mrs. Norton said the real purpose of the inquiry is to find out what the people of the District desire or need in the way of legislation or changes in administration.

The investigating subcommittee, headed by Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, would be given full authority to compel attendance of witnesses and produce documents.

Chairman Norton was authorized to invite Senator William H. King and his Senate District Committee to participate in the inquiry.

Police Continue Search For Baltimore Slayers

Washington police last night were combing the city for trace of three bus bandits wanted in Baltimore for the killing of Policeman John R. Block, 28, soon after they had held up and robbed a crowded bus on the outskirts of that city Thursday night.

Block sighted the bandits while he was riding in a patrol car and ordered them to stop. They increased their speed, simultaneously loosing a fusillade of bullets, several of which entered the policeman's body, fatally wounding him. They were last seen boarding a W. B. & A. train yesterday morning bound for Washington.

Harbor Police Rescue Launch Loose in River

A 40-foot cabin launch broke her moorings at the Potomac Boat Club last night, and drifted more than a mile down river until overhauled by police of the Harbor Precinct.

Attaches at the club said the boat broke away because of unusual current and high water. Park police reported the speedway seawall flooded to a depth of neraly 3 feet at Hains Point. The water backwashed at high tide—about 5 p. m.—but receded again shortly after dark. Heavy spring rains were held responsible.

Autopsy Is Inconclusive In Death of Woman, 63

An autopsy performed yesterday on the body of Mrs. Emma I. Kennedy, 68, who was found dead Thursday night, seated in a chair in her apartment at 710 Eleventh street northwest, with gas escaping from a faity jet in the kitchen, was not very informative as to the exact cause of her death, it was learned last night.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, acting coroner, sent a specimen of the woman's blood and stomach contents to the District chemist for analysis and a report is expected this morning.

HARRY DAVIS DEATH HEARING SET TODAY

Man Who Fired Fatal Shot and Friend Both Claim Slaying Accident.

Whether Harry (Doc) Davis, popular gambler and brother of Police Inspector Ogden T. Davis, was murdered or accidentally shot while acting a peacemaker in a sidewalk scuffle between two other men early Thursday will be considered today by a coroner's jury at the District Morgue.

George P. Harding, who admits firing the fatal shot, declared it was accidental. Bennie Olewack, who drove Harding from the shooting scene, corroborates the accident theory. Both are technically charged with murder.

Homicide squad investigators have obtained half a dozen witnesses who it is claimed will testify that Harding pointed the weapon at Davis and pulled the trigger.

The gun has not been found. Harding says he dropped it after the shooting. He said he purchased it from a stranger for $5 after being told a hard-luck story a few minutes before the shooting.

Funeral services for Davis will be held at his home, 423 Ingraham street northwest, at 9:30 a. m. Monday. A requiem mass will be held, after the home rites, at St. Aloysius Church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Man Seriously Injured By Hit-and-Run Driver

Harry Pixton, 61, of 1060 Bladensburg road, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver at Bladensburg road and L streets northeast.

Pixton was removed to Casualty Hospital and treated for a dislocated left shoulder, severe lacerations to the face and shock. The striking machine was said by witnesses to have been a light truck, painted white.

5-DAY WEEK IS NEAR FOR PRINTING OFFICE

McCarl Decision Rendered as Result of Dispute Concerning Leaves.

Acting on a decision rendered yesterday by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, Public Printer George Carter placed the 5,000 employes of the Government Printing Office on the five-day week, effective until the end of the fiscal year, it was learned last night by The Post.

The decision came as a result of the controversy over the question of the 30 days' leave, held by certain officials to be due the employes. The leave, accrued between June 30, 1931, and July 1, 1932, was taken from the office personnel by the original economy bill. The printing office, unlike the other Government departments, can not take accrued leave until the end of a year's period.

McCarl's ruling was so construed as to leave employes the benefit of 15 of the 30 days between now and June 30. The decision, it was learned, came as a surprise in face of last week's order that adopted the full six-day week in place of the original five and a half days of work.

Three Men Jailed In Cigarette Theft

12 Cartons Reported to Have Been Removed From Freight Car.

Three colored men were in the custody of police last night on charges of investigation in connection with the alleged theft of 12 cartons of cigarettes, valued at about $60, from a freight car of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Benning, D. C.

They were apprehended after one of the trio, James Tippin, 23, of Charlottesville, Va., attempted to sell several cartons at a Sanitary Grocery Co. store at Seventh and Q streets northwest. When Tippin was arrested he told Washington police where the cigarettes were hidden and gave them information which brought about the arrest in Alexandria of his alleged accomplices, Samuel Gibson, 32, and Alfred Williams, 32, both of Washington.

ARREST FOR MURDER IS MADE AS PAINTER VISITS JAILED SISTER

D. C. Detectives Take Youth Wanted in Roanoke on Killing Charge.

Jack Bolt, alias Bud Woolwack, 20-year-old painter, was arrested yesterday in connection with the murder and robbery of a Roanoke, Va., grocer last November by headquarters detectives, who confronted him with drawn guns as he walked into the women's section of the District Jail to visit Jean Reed, said to be his sister, held as a Federal witness in a Mann act case.

The man was traced, police said, by Lieut. J. T. Riley, of the Roanoke police department, working with Department of Justice agents since the crime.

Inmates Set Up Cry.

As Detective Sergts. A. D. Mansfield and Richard Cox took the surprised youth into custody, women prisoners in surrounding cells set up a furore of cries and matrons came hurrying to quiet the disturbance. The girl said to be Bolt's sister burst into tears.

Bolt was held in a precinct cell last night. Roanoke police were notified of the arrest, and Lieut. Riley is expected today to take the man back to Roanoke for questioning. The arrest was made on a warrant sworn by Chief of Police R. J. Manning of Roanoke.

Shot in Holdup.

Isaiah T. Minter, 78-year-old Roanoke grocer, was shot to death last November 12 by a bandit attempting a holdup.

The grocer had been asked for a package of chewing gum by the bandit, and as a clerk reached for the gum the bandit pointed the gun at Minter and said, indicating the open cash register, "hand it over."

Minter walked around the counter and began to interrogate the bandit, who fired twice into the grocer's body and fled. He disappeared in a nearby freight yard and escaped despite an intensive search by police and citizens.

Shoemaker to Get Test of Immunity

Congress Member Neglects to Attend Court in Punching Case.

The immunity, or lack of it, that surrounds the Congressional punch, as administered by Representative Francis H. Shoemaker (Farmer-Laborite), Minnesota, will be tested in Police Court Monday morning, it was announced yesterday when the representative failed to appear to face a charge of having punched Theodore H. Cohen.

Cohen was hit in the eye when he declined to shut off his radio in his apartment in the Chastleton, where lives also the representative. Five stitches were required to close a gaping wound. The question of just how far the cloak of immunity surrounds a member of Congress who is here attending its sessions has never been determined. Some authorities are inclined to believe that nothing can be done about it, at least while the sessions are going on.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover intimated yesterday that on Monday, if Mr. Shoemaker did not appear, "appropriate action" would be taken.
